B. & O. To Build New Passenger Station Here

60-YEAR-OLD DEPOT WILL BE REPLACED

Follows by Month Pennsy's Announcement of $75,000 Modernization Program.

SUBMITS PLAN TO C. OF C.

Division Superintendent Says Work on $8,000 Building to Start in Spring.

Mansfield had the promise today of a new B. and O. passenger station before midsummer to replace the 60-year-old structure that for years has been the object of jokes and an "eye-sore" for the city.

Announcement of plans for the new station was made yesterday by H. H. Harsh, superintendent of the railroad's Newark division, and followed by just a month announcement of a $75,000 remodeling and modernizing program at the Pennsylvania passenger station.

Harsh gave the city its second dose of good railroad news at a meeting of the passenger stations committee of the Chamber of Commerce after telephoning that he wanted to meet with the members.

Committee Pleased.

He submitted the plans at a session in the Chamber of Commerce rooms and asked for the committee's acceptance. Well pleased with his proposal, the committee gave its unanimous approval immediately.

Harsh said the report would be submitted to C. W. Galloway, B. and O. vice president in charge of operations at Baltimore, Md., who authorized the new depot.

Work on the station, which will cost about $8,000, will be started as soon as weather conditions permit, probably late in March or early in April, Harsh said. It will require a month or six weeks to complete the structure, he added.

The new depot will be a one-story, brick, fireproof structure, 20 feet wide and 40 feet long, approximately the size of the present

New Cabinet Delays Parliament Session on U. S. Trade.

TOKYO — (U.P.) — As one of its first official acts the new cabinet of Premier Admiral Mitsumasa Yonai decided today to postpone the reopening of parliament, scheduled for Jan. 20, until Feb. 1, nearly a week after expiration of the Japanese-American trade treaty on Jan. 26.

It was believed that the postponement was decided upon to give the new government time to cope with the problem of Japanese-American commercial relations without at the same time having to face debate on the issue in parliament.

The 1911 Japanese-American treaty was abrogated by the United States six months ago in protest against restrictions on American trade in China by the Japanese military. No provision has been made for continuing commercial relations after expiration date, Jan. 26.

ASKS FINN AID BUT BANS ARMS

President Would Allow Loans to Permit Purchase of Farm Products, Other Goods.

(By United Press)

WASHINGTON — President Roosevelt today proposed that the United States lend money to Finland to enable her to buy surplus U. S. farm products and manufactured goods. He did not specify how much credit should be offered Finland.

Mr. Roosevelt emphasized that use of the proposed credit for purchase of arms or implements of war would be forbidden.

The president outlined his proposal for Finnish aid in identical letters to Vice President John N. Garner and House Speaker William B. Bankhead.

He warned against creation of any precedent which might open the way to large credits to European nations but said he did not believe his proposal would "constitute or threaten any so-called 'involvement' in European wars."

The president proposed that the loans to Finland be provided through the Export-Import bank and the Reconstruction Finance corp. The Export-Import bank has already advanced a $10,000,000 credit, but Finland has called for only $3,000,000 of that sum.

"There is without doubt in the United States a great desire for some action to assist Finland to finance the purchase of agricultural surpluses and manufactured products, not including implements of war," said Mr. Roosevelt.

Firemen Endangered by Severed Mains in Atlanta Blaze.

ATLANTA, Ga. — (U.P.) — Firemen, endangered by severed gas lines, fought today to prevent a three-alarm fire from spreading to a populous section of downtown Atlanta.

Cold weather hampered the fire-fighters. Stores afire were the Toggery shop and the Citizens Loan association. Owners estimated that stock worth $55,000 would be a total loss.

2 NEW JUNIOR HIGHS TO BE OPENED JAN. 29

Board Sets Up Boundary Lines, Administration, Teaching Staffs for Schools.

OKAYS SHIFT OF ROHLEDER

Hedges Principal Transferred to Johnny Appleseed; Dotson Stays at John Simpson.

The latest additions to Mansfield's school system, the new John Simpson and Johnny Appleseed junior high buildings, will be opened Jan. 29, the start of the second semester.

School board members completed arrangements for the opening at a meeting last night at which boundary lines and administration and teaching staffs for the schools set up.

W. L. Miller, superintendent of schools, told the board that class rooms in both buildings will be completed by Jan. 29, but the auditorium, home economics room and locker rooms at the John Simpson building will not be ready until later.

The board approved Miller's assignment of Glenn Rohleder, principal of Hedges school, to head the new Johnny Appleseed school, and the shifting of Glen Robinson, principal of the West Fifth Street school, to the principalship of Hedges school.

Blauser Gets New Post.

W. W. Blauser, assistant principal of the John Simpson building, was named principal of the West Fifth Street school to succeed Robinson. G. A. Clouse was shifted from the Bushnell school to the new Johnny Appleseed building where he will teach industrial arts.

H. W. Dotson will continue as principal of the John Simpson school. There will be no assistant principals at any of the buildings under the new set-up, Miller said.

The city will be divided into north and south districts for the junior high schools with the new boundary line, roughly, formed by First street, Marion avenue, Summit street, and Maple street.

The boundary line will start at East First street and the city lim-

ANOTHER SIEGE

Cold to Continue, Mercury to Drop Lower Tonight.

Mansfield was in for another siege of winter weather today as snow swirled across northern Ohio and thermometer readings dropped to as low as nine degrees above zero.

The snow was forecast to extend over more of the state tonight along with colder temperatures. The official forecast predicted "continued cold tonight and Wednesday, colder Wednesday night and Thursday."

The temperature dropped to 11 degrees in Mansfield last night, the coldest in the past several days, but at noon today it was up to 17. The highest yesterday was 26.

Finishing touches on the two buildings, financed by a bond issue voted in 1938 and PWA assistance, are being rushed to have the buildings ready for occupancy with the start of the second 1939-40 semester, which opens Jan. 29.

'Quads', Born in Alabama Cabin, Expected to Live

Girls Named 'Faith,' 'Hope' and 'Charity' While Their Brother Remains Just Plain Anonymous.

(By United Press)

JASPER, Ala.—Faith, Hope and Charity, newly arrived in this world, were still living today as was their unnamed brother. Moreover, they had a good chance to continue living.

They were quadruplets delivered Sunday night. The multiple births occurred in a two-room farm cabin in the red clay hills 18 miles from here, with an astonished 65-year-old country doctor presiding.

Today they were being fed dried milk mixed with water in the Walker county hospital here. The hospital was not equipped with incubators and one was improvised for them.

Dr. H. J. Shankey in the course of a practice of 36 years has delivered 3,000 babies, including 50 sets of twins. But he was not prepared for a miracle when he was summoned Sunday night to the cabin of share-cropper and coal miner, Clyde Short.

The temperature was 36 degrees, very cold for Alabama, and a gusty wind whistled through the hills. He drove 20 miles to the cabin.

The bedroom of the two-room cabin was 15 by 16 feet and contained two iron beds facing an open fire place. There was hardly room to move. Mrs. Short, 36,

Army Didn't Ask Hore-Belisha Dismissal, Chamberlain Says.

LONDON—(AP)—Prime Minister Chamberlain told the House of Commons today that it was "pure invention" to suggest that there had been pressure on him from the army to displace Leslie Hore-Belisha, dropped from the cabinet in the shakeup of Jan. 4.

The prime minister spoke to a packed and frequently cheering house which had gathered to hear both sides explain the sensational dismissal of the war secretary.

Making a "personal statement," Hore-Belisha professed a desire "to clear those who have worked with me of any aspersion" of knifing him in the back with the prime minister.

"It did not occur to me," he declared discussing his administration of the war secretarship, "to consider that we were making an army too democratic to fight for a democracy."

Chamberlain declined to give detailed reasons for his act, which he said was in his "prerogative."

GETS NEW STEEL POST

CLEVELAND —(INS)— Appointment of J. C. Carruthers as manager of the tin plate sales division was announced today by N. J. Clarke, vice president in charge of sales for Republic Steel corporation.

DOUGLAS J. HILL LEAPS TO DEATH

Son of Empire Head Believed to Have Been Despondent Over Poor Health.

Tragedy today had struck at the home of James M. Hill, president of the Empire Sheet and Tin Plate company, with the word that his only son, Douglas James Hill, 18, Cornell freshman, had died in a 200-foot suicide leap from a bridge at Ithaca, N. Y., near his fraternity house.

The tragedy occurred yesterday afternoon. Word of it was received here by Mrs. Hill shortly after.

Mr. Hill was in New York on business and could not be reached. He left Newark airport by plane for Cleveland early in the evening and did not learn of his son's death until Mrs. Hill told him the news at the Cleveland airport.

A coroner's verdict today said that the youth's act was the result of a nervous breakdown and despondency over frail health. The boy had never been strong and had spent two winters in Phoenix in an effort to gain strength.

A brilliant student with an exceptionally fine mind, he was constantly annoyed that his lack of physical strength prevented him from keeping up with his ambitions, according to his instructors.

He was not taking a difficult first-year course at Cornell, according to his parents, and the only indication he gave them that

Finance Bill Gets Speedy Council O. K.

Appropriates $23,500 More Than Last Year to Operate City.

Passage of the city's 1940 appropriation bill, setting up $23,500 more for general operating expenses than in 1939, was effected in record time last night by city council with only one minor change.

Council members were primed for the measure as a result of the drafting of the ordinance by the finance committee last Thursday. Consideration of the bill only took about 10 minutes of council's time in a special session that lasted 45 minutes.

The measure provides for a total expenditure of $730,727 this year, of which $302,197 is set up in the operating fund; $117,011 for retirement of general bonds and the payment of interest, and a total of $311,519 for funds outside the general operating fund.

In passing the appropriation ordinance, council allowed funds for the purchase of one new truck for the park department, a new police cruiser and additions for both Liberty and North lake park pavilions.

The remainder of the $23,000 increase in the general fund was set up to meet the expense of the city's anticipated share of the relief burden this year.

Allows $30,000 For Relief.

Council appropriated $30,000 for this item by paring the appropriation of practically all city departments under those of last year.

The only change, a reduction of $500 in the amount allocated for the purchase of new fire hose, cut the fire department appropriations to $64,855. It had been set at $65,355 by the finance committee. As it now stands it allows $500 for new hose instead of $1,000.

This year's bill also provides for the employment of a full-time assistant health commissioner, an item which had been taken out of the budget last summer, but tacked on by the finance committee when members agreed that cost of the service of a full-time city physician would be prohibitive. The PARIS—(AP)—The French Admiralty announced today that a German freighter had been scuttled by her crew when halted by a French warship in the Atlantic.

(By United Press)

LONDON—The admiralty today announced the apparent destruction of three British submarines — the Seahorse, the Undine and the Starfish—while engaged "in particularly hazardous service."

The three ships, believed to have been operating along the German coast, normally carried a peacetime total of 107 men but probably had more men aboard for wartime action. Some of the crews of the Undine and Starfish were reported rescued by Germans.

All three submarines were of the smaller type, built for coastal operations. They were the first lost in action by the Allied powers, which claim to have destroyed or captured from 30 to 40 Nazi U-boats since the war started.

The Seahorse and the Starfish were both of the swordfish class. They were of 640 tons and each carried a normal complement of 40 men.

The Undine was of the Unity class. Her tonnage was 50 tons and she carried a normal complement of 27 men, which probably would be increased in war time service.

Failed to Report.

The Admiralty communique said:

"The secretary of the admiralty regrets to announce that during the past week his majesty's submarines Seahorse, Undine and

Patient, 7, Quits Hospital at 5 a. m., Runs Home In Cold

Little Charles Gremling is seven years old. He lives with his parents, Mr. and Mrs. F. W. Gremling, 163 South Mulberry street and he doesn't like hospitals.

On the coldest day of the winter, last Tuesday, Charles fled from the General hospital and ran home to his mother. And that was quite a jaunt—a half mile with the mercury at 15 below zero, if you'll remember. All this came out today.

Charles was taken to the hospital the day before to have his tonsils removed.

His mother didn't expect to go after him until about 9 or 10 a. m. Tuesday, but at 5 a. m. in came Charles all out of breath.

His mother questioned the youth concerning his release and why he had come home at such a decidedly unusual hour.

All Charles had to say was that they told him he could go home so he got up and dressed. He said he had run all the way home to keep warm.

Meanwhile at the hospital the boy's absence was discovered by night nurses and a call was put in to police headquarters.

At 6 a. m. the officers called at the Gremling home, found Charles with his mother and reported back to the hospital authorities that "all was well."

Marriott To Seek Democratic Nomination For Probate Judge

County Prosecutor G. W. Marriott announced today for the Democratic nomination for Richland county probate judge, the first to take out petitions for the office held by Judge C. J. Anderson, a Republican.

Marriott's candidacy was not a surprise since it had been reported for several months that he would run for probate judge. He had refused to discuss his plans, however, until today. He will complete his second term as prosecutor this year.

Two other candidates, a Democrat and a Republican, also entered the contests for county offices.

Ralph A. Schad, jr., 23 Florence avenue, son of the former sheriff and police chief, said he will seek the Republican nomination for sheriff.

Irvin S. Eller, 108 South Adams street, entered the contest for the Democratic nomination for county recorder. He has been employed by the Stuhldreher Floral company for a number of years.

Schad is the second to announce for sheriff on the Republican ticket. Berlyn V. McCready took out petitions for the nomination several days ago.

Eller is also the second in the field for recorder on the Democratic ticket, H. J. Guteunst, 443 Wood street, having announced his candidacy nearly a week ago.

Defers Action On Proposal To Teach Sex Hygiene In Schools

A proposal calling for the instruction in Mansfield junior and senior high schools on sex hygiene and preparation for marriage was submitted to the board of education last night by the health and social hygiene committees of the P. T. A. council.

The plan, presented unexpectedly at a meeting of the board by Dr. Mabel Emery, chairman of the council's health committee, was received virtually without comment by board members who deferred action on the proposal. Appearing before the board with Dr. Emery was Mrs. Milo W. Hieber, president of the P. T. A. council.

Declining to comment at the session, Supt. W. L. Miller said he would first have to "talk the matter over with principals of the junior and senior high schools."

He asserted today, however, that there was little hope of getting the lectures started at the beginning of the second semester if the board approves the plan.

Dr. Emery explained that the courses would be in charge of physicians, ministers, attorneys, and "others qualified to speak on the topics."

She said topics for junior high pupils would include anatomy, physiology, emotional development and social diseases. Older high school pupils would be instructed in character building and religion, family relationships and preparation for marriage.

Charges, Threats Fly as Louisiana Nominates Governor

4 CANDIDATES SEEK JOB HELD BY HUEY'S KIN

Long-Dominated Machine's at Stake in Bitter Democratic Primary Voting Today.

(By United Press)

NEW ORLEANS, La.—Scandal-shaken Louisiana nominates a governor today in an atmosphere thick with charges of fraud and threats of violence.

Four candidates opposed Gov. Earl K. Long, younger brother of the late "Kingfish" Huey Long, who was trying to hold intact the remnants of the Long political machine which had been deprived of most of its leading lights through federal prosecutions.

Foremost among the anti-Long candidates was Sam Houston Jones, a lawyer of Lake Charles, whose platform was: "Throw the thieves out."

Another was James A. Noe, state senator, oil and radio station operator, who deserted the machine soon after Long's assassination and who enlivened this campaign with charges that 8,000 persons were illegally registered in New Orleans, and a demand that they all be arrested when they tried to vote.

James H. Morrison of Hammond, Long machine opponent, was expected to draw slightly from the Long machine vote. His tactics, similar to those of the late "Kingfish," had won the admiration of some of the old Long campaigners.

G.O.P. Efforts Weak.

Vincent Moseley of Opelousas had mostly an Opelousas following.

It is a Democratic primary and if one candidate fails to get a majority of the votes cast, the two leaders will compete in a run-off primary in 30 days. The Democratic nomination is equivalent to election, although Republicans also are holding a gubernatorial primary for the first time since the 1890's.

Gov. Long promised that the machine, under his guidance, would continue the "clean-up" of thieves and grafters, begun last summer by the federal government.

Long became governor last fall, succeeding Gov. Richard A. Leche, who resigned a few weeks before he was indicted on federal mail fraud charges.

Man Who Heard Lincoln Speak Dies At Age 91

Mr. Zartman was a graduate of Baldwin-Wallace college and worked in drug stores at Newark and Utica before coming to Butler to open his own drug store in 1884. He retired in 1911 after operating the store 27 years.

His wife, Mary, a daughter, Mrs. Yeta Ramsey of Butler; a sister, Mrs. Elizabeth Stevens of Tiffin, and three grandchildren and four great-grandchildren survive.

He was a member of the Masonic lodge of Bellville, No. 376; Mansfield cahpter, No. 28, R. A. M., and council, No. 94, R. and S. M.

A clipping from a recent edition of the Long Beach, Cal., newspaper was of particular interest to veteran Richland county residents. It gave an account of the 67th wedding anniversary of Mr. and Mrs. Sylvanus Oldfield, who resided in this county for many years before moving to the west coast. Oldfield, a native of Bellville, is 92 years of age and his wife is 90. A daughter also resides on the coast.

James W. (Bill) Carr, fireman at station No. 2, was out shopping for a new umbrella today. Not because he wanted to use it in this snow but because the one he has been carrying on rainy days went up in smoke yesterday—right in his arms. He figures that some hot ashes from his favorite stogie were blown inside the folds by the wind.

PLANS LEVY TO AID RELIEFERS

Cleveland to Be Shy Funds Even If Measure Passes, Official Claims.

(By International News Service)

CLEVELAND — Hopeful that an 8.8 mill extra tax levy, including one and one-half mills for relief, will be approved by the voters in March, Cleveland authorities today estimated that the city will be approximately $3,000,000 short in relief funds even should the levy pass.

This figure was arrived at by Frank E. Bubna, Cleveland head of federal relief and WPA relations, who estimated that the levy would provide $1,800,000. Matching of this amount dollar-for-dollar by the state would give the city $3,600,000 for the care of indigent persons.

But even that amount, Bubna pointed out, would fall between $2,400,000 and $3,400,000 short of the amount needed for care of relief cases this year.

Until the levy comes up all departments of Cleveland's government are being operated on an emergency basis and relief funds are drawn from a single appropriation for all expenses.

Since the relief crisis a month ago, which ended when city council approved issuance of $1,050,000 in delinquent bonds and their sale to the city sinking fund, the relief load has been reduced by 2,500 cases, Bubna said.

SEN. WAGNER PLANS IMPROVED MODEL OF LABOR RELATIONS ACT

(By United Press)

WASHINGTON—Sen. Robert F. Wagner, D., N. Y., author of the National Labor Relations act, announced plans today for new legislation to improve industrial relations.

The bill, which he will introduce in the Senate probably late next month, will provide for an improved federal conciliation service designed to stabilize labor relations, reduce labor strife, and help settle strikes.

Wagner declined to discuss details of his bill, but similar plans have been discussed in labor circles ever since the National Labor Relations Board became the target of attacks by employers and labor unions.

Among those advocating enlargement and extension of the existing conciliation service of the labor department has been William M. Leiserson, newest member of the labor board and former chairman of the National Mediation Board.

The labor department's conciliation service now is charged with using its good offices to seek peaceful settlement in any labor disputes. A section of the act creating the labor department authorizes the secretary of labor to act as mediator or appoint commissioners "whenever the interests of industrial peace may require it to be done."

In the past it has been contended that the service was understaffed and lacked funds to participate in a nation-wide scale in labor disputes.

Meanwhile, the house labor committee called its first meeting of this session for today.

TOO MUCH DRUG

Joan Bennett's Ex-Mate Tries Suicide, Resents New Groom.

LOS ANGELES —(AP)— Film Actress Joan Bennett's first husband, John Marion Fox, 38, lay gravely ill in a hospital today, a victim of poisoning from an overdose of sleeping tablets.

"I didn't like the idea of Joan Bennett being married to that other guy," Fox was quoted as saying by Dr. A. D. Trotter, police surgeon.

Miss Bennett was married last week in Phoenix, Ariz., to Walter Wanger, motion picture producer.

Dr. Trotter said Fox —once wealthy but listed at the hospital as a salesman—told him he had taken 100 tablets of a hypnotic drug.

Fox, a former Seattle broker, is the father of Miss Bennett's daughter, Diana, 11. He and the actress were married in London Sept. 15, 1926, and divorced Aug. 1, 1928.

FOUR PERISH AS SIX COMPANIONS REACH SAFETY

Tide Brings Dramatic Tragedy to Youngsters; Three Bodies Sought.

(By International News Service)

BOSTON—Police today dragged South Boston bay for the bodies of three of the four boys who drifted to their deaths on ice cake rafts in one of the grimmest and most dramatic harbor tragedies in recent years. Six others were rescued.

The dead were Joseph P. Curry, jr., 16, whose body was recovered; Charles Kendall, 10; Wallace Whitehouse, 12, and his brother, Ralph Whitehouse, 8.

As they played, the tide began coming in. The ice slowly began to flow out and broke up into huge chunks. The boys seemed to be unaware that the currents created by the incoming tide were sweeping them slowly seaward.

Before they realized their predicament, the boys were well beyond their depths. Each soon found himself on an individual ice-cake raft. The blocks were gradually breaking up or chipping off into smaller sections as they drifted away from shore.

Snatch Four to Safety.

Police and private rescue boats snatched four of the boys to safety. Two others with presence of mind jumped into shallow water and swam to shore.

Young Curry was the first of the victims to slip from his ever-shrinking ice-cake and drown. The other three boys slipped into the sea before the rescue boats could reach them.

Ironically enough, Curry had gone to the beach to warn his brother not to venture onto the ice because it was to dangerous. He stayed instead to join the others and lost his life.

GIVEN PAROLES

Richland, Crawford Men to Be Freed in March.

One Richland and one Crawford county inmate were among 89 prisoners at the Ohio State reformatory to be granted paroles today by the Ohio Pardon and Parole commission, dispatches from Columbus said. The board also conditionally released two others and granted paroles to seven inmates at the Marysville reformatory for women.

The Richland county inmate is Eugene Lewis, 24, who was sentenced by Common Pleas Judge C. H. Huston last March to serve a one to three year term on a charge of non-support.

From Crawford county is Glenn Crissinger, 18, sentenced Feb. 25, 1939, to serve one to 15 years for assault with intent to rape. Both are to be released Mar. 1.

FAIR ENOUGH!

Col. Pegler Argues That Ambassadors Really Don't Need To Be Spendthrifts

—By WESTBROOK PEGLER

NEW YORK—We get down to cases when it is argued that only rich men can afford to accept important American diplomatic posts because there must be champagne and caviar, shining linen and sparkling glassware for which the government makes no appropriation, and which cannot be paid for out of the salaries provided by law.

Says who?

That American ambassadors and ministers do spend much more than they receive in pay and allowances is not denied, but that they must do so in order to perform their duties is not so readily conceded.

A diplomatic representative is sent abroad to act as agent, with limited powers, of the United States government and to engage, politely, in espionage of one kind and another.

It is supposed that he will make friends in the capital in which he is posted who will invite him to dine or play a round of golf now and again, and that, in order to hold up his end, he will invite them back.

However, it seems unnecessary for him to explode a banquet for them and the local aristocracy and official set every so often or to run a hotel for visiting Americans.

The fact that the other ambassadors or ministers in town live extravagantly on money appropriated for that purpose by their respective governments should not oblige the American to do likewise. On the contrary simplicity and frugality would constitute a fairly readable hint to the representatives of those nations which owe this one money that collections are very slow and that our men too, would be able to swank it if certain others didn't live beyond their means and did pay their debts.

If the Russian embassy in Washington could manage to get along with a little less champagne and fewer of those chairleg Havanas that the diplomats serve with coffee a certain number of Russian soldiers in the war to confer the boon of Stalinism on the Finns might be sent into the field with warm underwear and leather boots instead of paper shoes.

The good impression that is made on a corps of other diplomats, also living on expense accounts paid out of the want and denial of their respective people, by serving them champagne and cigars if of negligible benefit to Soviet Russia by comparison with the bad impression which the dumb, bovine, faceless lumps in the cheese-cloth uniforms of the Soviet army are giving the Finns.

Diplomats never impress one another anyway, and the money which they spend to entertain is 90 per cent waste, which is another way of saying that they could get along on about 10 per cent of their allowance for entertainment. They all know that their colleagues, with the exception of the American, are expense-account sports and too stingy or too poor to buy a bowl of chili for anyone else on their own money, and that every time a diplomat pops a bead of caviar into his whiskers the family of some poor, raggedy dope back in the home country of the one who is giving the party is going without a faceful of sausage, a yard of spaghetti or something with which to grease a piece of sawdust bread.

As for the local aristocracy, they are the fancy-pants of the capital and not at all representative of the people; and, taking Washington as an example, it isn't worth the cab fare for any foreign diplomat to attend any party of their giving. If he does go he will stagger home groggy from the fantastic babble of misinformation, worthless small-talk and malicious little lies, and when he gives a return party and bills it to his foreign office as the expense of keeping posted he ought, by rights, to be called home and prosecuted like any other embezzler.

Having thus demolished the case for garishness in the social life of American diplomats on foreign station, I will now sweep up the debris and dump it out of the window of those who offer their argument by asking why, if rich men must be had, the selections are always limited to a list of those who gave big checks to the campaign fund of the president in office?

I have heard it argued by nobody more passionately than by New Dealers that rich men should not be allowed to use their vast fortunes to influence our solemn referenda, but find the New Deal rewarding millionaires of doubtful competence with important diplomatic posts for doing just that.

Hollywood Speaks---

—By ROBBIN COONS

(The song-writer takes time off from ditties for "Buck Benny Rides Again" to fill in—lyrically—for vacationing Robbin Coons.)

By FRANK LOESSER

From the maudlin old realm of the Words and the Tunes,
Comes a sucker to pinch-hit for
Columnist Coons.
For a sucker he is,
Who just can't mind his biz,
But who calmly attempts to pinch-hit for a whiz
Like the eminent Columnist
Coons.

Yet I lead with my chin, for I'm one of those goons
(From that maudlin old realm of the Words and the Tunes)
With a feeling for rhyme,
Which, however sublime,
Has a way of affecting you, after a time—
Like the crunching of stale macaroons.

A sensation of utter delight, to be sure!
To escape the demands of the torrid Lamour
Who awaits my new song
In her flowered sarong
(And the darn thing is taking entirely too long)
During this journalistic detour.

And it's oh! such a comfort to foil
Dennis Day,
When he comes to rehearse, I shall genially say:
"Oh, I'm sure that you'll click
"In that Jack Benny pic,
"But you'll help with this extra-curricular trick
"By refraining from sounding your A."

So farewell for a while to the
Junes and the Moons
Of the maudlin old realm of the Words and the Tunes
And the old Lovey-Dove
And the Stars up Above
As I strike a new note in the interest of The vacationing Columnist Coons.

But I find, as I write (and on Paramount's time!)
That my penchant for prose is not quite in its prime.
And I struggle and strain,
And I rack the old brain,
And yet somehow my character
seems to remain
In the maudlin old realm of the Rhyme.

And I tell myself: "Loesser, come on, be a man!
"If you say the right things, why they don't have to scan!"
But my pen won't behave
And once more I'm a slave
(In this land of the free, in this home of the brave)
To an Alley that's known as Tin
Pan!

So I might as well try to apply
all this verse
To the fair Mary Martin who needs to rehearse,
Or that Earl Carroll thing
That we shoot in the spring,
Or perhaps an enticing cantata for Bing—
And thus capitalize on the curse.

So goodbye, gentle readers of
Columnist Coons,
For you've had quite enough of the Moons and the Junes.
As for you, Brother C,
If I'm ever set free
For a couple of weeks, would
YOU pinch-hit for ME—
In the realm of the Words and the Tunes?

PRODUCE PEACH RESISTING COLD

Botanist Experiments for 15 Years, Finds His New Fruit Will Survive Freeze.

(By United Press)

PORTALES, N. M.—The world has a new peach tree and Dr. Andrew Fletcher Ogle, New Mexico botanist, the surprise of his life—a surprise that was 15 years in materializing.

Dr. Ogle, who is a professor in teacher education at Eastern New Mexico Junior College, related the story of the new Giant Snowfall peach which he has been developing since 1925.

The professor had been experimenting in the development of new colors and forms of foliage, dahlias and apple trees for many years. He began the peach experiments in 1912 at his home in northern Indiana. Only one tree on the property of a neighbor, Peter Jahler, had survived the hard freeze of that year and it produced a large crop of peaches.

Jahler gave Dr. Ogle seeds from the tree and the professor planted 450 little trees. These he budded into his own trees and three years later was rewarded by two remarkably hardy crops — one a yellow-meated freestone and the other white-meated.

Several years later, Dr. Ogle sent his samples to the Mark Nursery at Louisiana, Mo. The nursery, owned by Gen. Lloyd C. Stark of Missouri, analyzed and experimented with Ogle's product.

The nursery notified him 15 years later that his new strain of peaches was a success. It also sent him royalties on sales of the Giant Snowfall peach which the nursery sold through its marketing organization.

The Y. M. C. A. has 1,154 local associations in the United States.

BULLET-PROOF TIRES USED BY BRITISH ON MILITARY TRUCKS

(By International News Service)

LONDON—British army trucks are now using a bullet-proof tire, according to Brigadier J. S. Crawford Director of Mechanization at the Ministry of Supply.

The principal of the tire is that the bullet does not bounce off but penetrates the rubber. The interior construction prevents the tire from collapsing when hit.

Brigadier Crawford revealed that British scientists have been experimenting since the end of the World War to produce such a tire.

"I think this country is the only one which has produced a successful bullet-proof tire," he said. "We have had it for some years but have not talked about it."

Tests have shown that it is possible for a tire to stand up for at least 100 miles after being hit by a bullet.

"Army trucks have been fitted with a bullet-proof cover for some years, but they are all being replaced by the new one of improved design and performance," Brigadier Crawford said.

It is now claimed that Britain leads the world with a tire that will do all the army wants it to do.

IN THE RUHL BOOK

By OSCAR RUHL,
News-Journal Sports Editor.

JUDGING from a story out of San Francisco, the Seals are well satisfied with the acquisition of Johnny Barrett, who got his start in baseball in the 1937 Mansfield outfield, and believe he will fill the spot vacated by the sale of Dominick DiMaggio to the Boston Red Sox. The story:

SAN FRANCISCO, Cal. — Pruning and grafting processes are under way in the revamping of the San Francisco Seals for 1940 John J. Barrett, an outfielder, was acquired on option from Louisville in the American Association last week. As the same time, the releases of Bill Shores and Lou Koupal, two veteran right-handed pitchers, were announced by Charley Graham, Seals' president.

Replacements for Koupal and Shores are expected to come from the Boston Red Sox when the American League club completes payment for Dominic DiMaggio and Larry Powell. Two pitchers are due the Seals from the Red Sox, but as yet the pitchers have not been turned over to Graham.

The Red Sox also have an interest in Barrett, who comes to the Seals as the result of an understanding reached by Joe Cronin, the Red Sox manager, and Graham last month.

The Red Sox have a one-third interest in the Louisville club and are keeping an eye on Barrett as a possible major league prospect. Barrett has the reputation of being fast, a good fielder and baserunner, with a minor weakness at the plate. Cronin thought it would be a good idea if Barrett came to the Seals to get the benefit of the hitting instructions of Frank (Lefty) O'Doul, the Seals' manager. If Barrett can boost his batting average 15 points he is worth a major league trial Cronin told Graham.

Barrett lives in Lowell, Mass., is six feet one inch tall, weighs 185 pounds. Last year he was farmed to Scranton, hit .278 in 487 times at bat, stole 26 bases. With Hazelton in the Eastern League, he batted .301, hit 21 triples stole 28 bases in 1938. In 1937 he hit .378 for Mansfield in the Ohio State League.

Barrett is expected to make a serious bid for the job left vacant in center field by the sale of DiMaggio. Douglas Smith, Jim Kiley and Bob Price, three rookies, also are candidates for the job.

Baseball Men Get Another Warning.

A LOT of baseballs have been knocked out of the park since 1906, but even back in those days the powers-that-were campaigned against the violators of the professional game's rules governing player transactions.

The game's long struggle to keep player manipulations within legal bounds was emphasized boldy once again this week by Commissioner K. M. Landis' edict freeing 91 baseball players owned by the Detroit club and valued at $500,000.

In freeing four Detroit players and 87 minor leaguers and ordering payment of almost $50,000 to 14 other players, Landis warned the club owners and executives that continued "covering up" of players would result in banishment from baseball of the guilty parties.

Just 36 years ago this spring the national baseball commission, composed of Ban Johnson, Harry C. Pulliam and August Hermann, drew up what is thought to be the first rule striking at such practices. For violation of rules on player transactions, the commission set fines of $1,000 on major league clubs, $750 for Class A league and so on down the line.

The commission warned that a second offense would lead to the withdrawal of the protection of the game's governors—which would amount to wrecking a club since its hold on its players would have no legal status.

Since that time there have been repeated warnings and repeated violations. Less than two years ago the baseball world was jolted when Landis lashed out at the St. Louis Cardinals. He charged the club with mishandling players, gave free agency to more than 100 of them and levied fines against the Cards and some of their affiliates. But the Detroit case exceeds by far all past ones in magnitude.

The commissioner not only freed the 91 players but prohibited Detroit and affiliated clubs from dealing for them within three years. In addition, the Chicago Cubs were fined $1,000 and the St. Louis Browns $1,000 for meddling and Cleveland was assessed $2,000 for "covering up" a player.

Boiling Boilermakers In Undisputed Lead

Purdue Cuts Minnesota Down to Size, While Illinois Topples Michigan.

By ERNEST BARCELLA

CHICAGO —(U.P.)— Purdue's boiling Boilermakers stand alone today at the top of Big Ten basketball.

The hottest team in the conference is perched there safely for at least another 26 days because all firing has ceased until Feb. 10 while most of the Big Ten athletes take time out to tune up for mid-year exams.

Purdue steamed into sole possession of first place last night by cutting Minnesota down to size, 50-34, while Illinois was taking a 48-43 fall out of previously unbeaten Michigan in a mild upset.

Michigan's defeat left only Purdue with a spotless conference record as all teams ended the first third of the campaign. The Boilermakers have won four straight, and their closest pursuers — one game back—are Michigan and Indiana, which rebounded from an upset defeat at the hands of Minnesota to conquer Wisconsin, 40-34.

In other games last night, Ohio State's defending champions nosed out Northwestern, 32-31, to leave both teams tied with Illinois and Minnesota at two victories and two defeats apiece. Iowa shoved Chicago into undisputed possession of the cellar with its first conference triumph in four starts, 41-27. Chicago hasn't won a game.

Purdue, which started out as a "dark horse," then became co-favorite with Indiana, now has moved into the favorite's role.

The Boilermaker's bugaboo is the problem of staying at a peak during the 26-day layoff. All the other teams except Purdue and Minnesota have at least one non-conference game between now and Feb. 10. And Purdue can't afford to cool off in the interim because, when conference competition resumes, its first foe will be its chief challenger—Indiana.

Two brilliant, one-man scoring shows highlighted an otherwise routine night of play. Capt. Bill Hapac of Illinois contributed a 20-point performance to lead his mates to victory over Michigan, which was kept in the ball game by Capt. Jim Rae's 16-point effort.

The other star was Wisconsin's Gene Englund who sank 19 points in a heroic, but futile attempt to carry the Badgers to victory over Indiana, whose top man was Curly Armstrong with 13 points.

Cracked Down On Tigers

In a sweeping decision, Judge K. M. Landis, baseball czar, declares five regular members of the Detroit Tigers and 88 minor league players belonging to the Detroit club free agents. Landis, warning major league owners, cracked down on the "covering up" of ball players by big league clubs and trades which are merely bookkeeping transactions.

Tygers Invade Shelby

Mansfield High Cagers Play First of Two Games on This Week's Card Tonight.

THREATENING to shake up the lineup if his proteges do not show a complete reversal of form, Coach Vern Hoffman will send his Tygers of Mansfield high school against the Shelby Whippets on the Shelby hardwood tonight.

This will mark the first of two annual games with the Whippets, and the Tygers, beaten three times, will attempt to register their sixth triumph.

The Tygers bowed to Hamilton, 35 to 28, in their last game, and the defeat was due to their failure to get started in the first half. They trailed 22 to 9 at the intermission.

Unless the Tygers start clicking, Hoffman said over the week-end that lineup changes would result. He, however, refused to reveal the players whose jobs will be in danger.

Mansfield's big job tonight will be to halt Bob Lehman, star center of the Shelby club. Averaging 16 points a game, Lehman is the chief offensive cog in the Shelby machine.

Unless the Tygers can halt Lehman, Mansfield's victory chances will not be over encouraging.

It is likely that Hoffman will start his usual lineup consisting of the Genes, Miller and Rudolph at the forwards, Russ Beer at center and Bill Herpich and Don Rose at the guards.

Jack Shiplet, whose performances have been the highlights of the Tygers' play in recent games, will see plenty of action, and may even start.

A preliminary game is scheduled between the reserve teams of the two schools at 7:15 p. m.

So That's Why Chicago Dropped Grid Sport.

AKRON—(AP)— Good football teams attract less desirable students to colleges, in the opinion of Jerome G. Kerwin, political science professor at the University of Chicago.

Kerwin, whose school recently dropped from Western conference football competition, declared last night: "In my 20-some years of teaching I have found that, after a successful football season, there is a noticeable decline in the type of students entering the school the next year.

It's Happened, Fans! Bladensburg Wins

By FRITZ HOWELL

COLUMBUS—(AP)—More than 1,000 basketball games were played last week by Ohio's 1,144 high school teams, but today's yarn must center around little Bladensburg, Knox county village of 140 persons.

For, at long last, the gay blades of Bladensburg have won a game—the first in history for that school. True, they had to travel through an overtime period, and the final score was only 13 to 11, but at the finish the Blades invaded the winner's circle for the first time.

* * * * *

Union of Coshocton county was the victim, and now the Bladensburg all-time record reads: won 1, lost 17, points scored 215, scored by opponents 1,015. That gives the Blades an offensive average of 11.9, against an average of 56.3 for the foe.

* * * * *

Both Bladensburg and Union started their basketball careers a year ago, the Blades dropping 11 in a row last season. They had lost six this year, before smiting Union.

Other addities popped up over the state, while the better teams sauntered along the way to the title tournaments.

At Mt. Vernon the Yellow Jacket captain, Bill Crumrine, opened the game against Marion Harding by tossing a basket for the foe. Marion took the ball out of bounds under its own basket and tried to shoot one for Mt. Vernon. The officials finally set the boys right, and Mt. Vernon won its eighth straight, 48 to 34.

A fan riot at Wheelersburg halted the New Boston-Wheelersburg game with four minutes to go and the score knotted at 28. The coaches decided to let the score stand so it's in the books as the only deadlock of the season. All chances of breaking the tie were lost as New Boston cancelled the return game scheduled Saturday.

Mt. Vernon's win was its 20th straight on the home floor, while Greenville beat Piqua 21-18 for its first victory in 20 starts. Lancaster whipped Newark 30-29 for its first win on that club's floor since 1933, and Coshocton beat Newark for the first time since 1936, 43 to 41.

On the more serious side, Cincinnati Woodward beat Walnut Hills, Hughes and North College Hill to pull into a tie with nine straight wins with Middletown, which beat an in-and-out Portsmouth combination. New Philadelphia beat Uhrichsville and East Liverpool to join Mt. Vernon in second place with eight in a row. Other Class A teams still undefeated include Canton McKinley and Cleveland Collinwood with seven, and Grandview and Sciotoville with six.

Spring Valley of Greene county and Lynchburg of Highland county are "tops" in Class B with 13 in a row, followed by Wharton and Hoytville with 11; Beach City, Middle Point and Parkman with 10; Clarksburg, Columbiana, North Canton, Lockland, Maderia, and Worthington with nine; Forest, Ohio School for the Deaf, and Bellville with eight; Wyoming and Coventry with seven, Fairfield township of Columbiana county, Canton St. Johns, Mt. Vernon St. Vincent and Osborn Bath with six.

* * * * *

Akron North, defending Class A state champ, called on Substitute Frank Stumpo to pull out a 25-18 victory over Akron St. Vincent for its eighth win in 11 starts, while North Canton, Class B king, has nine straight conquests.

* * * * *

Other Class A leaders are: Ironton 9-1; Marietta and Bellevue 8-1; Findlay and Fremont Ross 7-1; Campbell Memorial and Dover 6-1; Canton Timken and Akron Kenmore 5-1; Youngstown Woodrow Wilson, Hamilton and Lancaster 6-2; Youngstown East, Struthers and Hamilton Catholic 5-2, and Massillon 4-2.

Teams beaten for the first time last week included Marietta and Akron Kenmore in Class A, and McConnelsville, Amanda and Versailles in Class B. McConnelsville's 21-game winning streak was halted by Philo, 35-34.

Weidner Gets Nod 'n' Jeers

AS FAR as wrestling's moguls are concerned Billy Weidner is still junior heavyweight champion of the world, but . . .

As far as most of the 1,200 fans who saw Weidner defend his title against the Great Mephisto last night at Tim Nolan's Quality club wrestling show, there is considerable doubt.

In fact, one could hear them mumbling as they went out that if Referee Clarence Miller hadn't handed the match to Billy, the ending might have been different.

There's some basis, too, for their doubt because the Great Mephisto gave the champ all he could handle and a little more in addition.

Throughout the first fall, which went to Weidner, who's known as the San Francisco savage, in 16 minutes, Mephisto out-bulled the champ. He roughed up the champ's face so badly it was red and puffy as he left the ring.

There are some who would tell you that only an accident gave Billy the first fall. Mephisto catching his leg in the ropes and apparently injuring it before Billy applied the deciding leg lock.

The second fall went to Mephisto in five minutes, after the challenger came out first in an exchange of elbows, body-slammed the champ into grogginess and won with a cruel pile driver.

In the third fall, Mephisto kept on the offensive, throwing the champ at will, until Miller stopped the bout and gave it to Weidner.

Not all the blame belongs on Miller's shoulders, however. Both boys had fallen out of the ring together. Weidner was first in, then Mephisto. But Miller ruled the challenger had not got his leg in before the count of 20—and automatically won the match.

Weidner walked away to a chorus of boos and a couple of punches from spectators, while Miller had an argument most of the way back to the dressing room. Mephisto, meanwhile, was in the center of the ring gesticulating and implying in no uncertain terms he'd been robbed.

The match was a natural, and Nolan would do well to bring them both back. The whole card was on a par.

In the semi-final Davey Reynolds and the Masked Marvel fought to a fast-moving 45-minute draw with each the possessor of a fall at the end.

Bud Steele, the Mansfield boy, won the curtain raiser to the chant of the school kids' cheers in just 15 minutes and looked good doing it. His opponent, Ralph Akers, was the toughest foe he'd met yet, and Bud handled him nicely.

Old 'Goldenrod' Gowdy Signs With Reds Again.

CINCINNATI—(AP)—It would have been news if he hadn't done it, but Hank Gowdy has signed a contract to coach the Cincinnati Reds for another year.

Somehow the pre-game activities wouldn't look right without "Old Goldenrod," also known as "Old Glory," "Sarge," and "Hey," out there pitching in batting practice.

Nor would it sound right on the bench without the echoes of Hank's expressions of boundless faith in the Reds' ability to win every game they play. "We're better than ever," he announced with an attempt to look conservative. "Pitching! that's it. Pitching. How can they beat us with that staff? How can they do it?"

Opposes Limit On Schedules

Portsmouth Booster Club Says Smaller Schools Control Ohio Sports.

PORTSMOUTH — (AP) — The Portsmouth Booster club, a civic group, today joined opposition to the proposed curtailment of Ohio high school football and basketball schedules and a ban on the post-season Buckeye Bowl grid classic.

The club sent a resolution to C. H. Jones, president of the Ohio High School Athletic association, declaring that if the proposals were not defeated "we will actively support any satisfactory program which will enable Ohio's larger schools to carry out their athletic programs without the opposition of smaller schools which now seems to evidence itself through recent proposals coming from the state board."

The state's 540 football-playing schools will vote on the board's recommendation for a nine-game limit and elimination of post-season games, while 1,144 schools will decide in a referendum whether to cut basketball schedules to 20 games, exclusive of tournaments.

Grant Murray, Toledo board of education vice president, opposing the curtailment, advocated a separate conference for the larger schools or placing control of high school athletics under the state department of education instead of the high school association.

Toledo Waite and Portsmouth high schools participated in last year's Buckeye Bowl game in Columbus.

H. R. Townsend, state commissioner of high school athletics, declared that the wishes of a majority of association members would continue to govern its policies.

Savings Bank Team Leads Scoring With 2768; Babe Meder Paces Individuals.

A 623 TOTAL by Babe Meder of the Page Dairys was high in the individual scoring lists in the Club league at the Meder alleys last night.

Meder finished with identical games of 222, but the Dairys failed to win more than one game from the American Legion entry.

The Mansfield Savings Bank club paced the team scoring with a 2768 total, which was good for a clean sweep over the Schoolmasters. The Bankers, consistent with games of 921, 925 and 922, were led by Ralph Lutz, who spilled 610 pins, opening with a 220

The Optimists dropped two games to the Kiwanians, but remained one game in front of the second place Lumbermens Mutuals, who took two tilts from the Tracy & Avery quintet. Bill Black shot an even 600 for the Kiwanis club.

The J. A. C. club won two games from the Richman Clothiers and the Liederkranz club did likewise against the Commercial Managers

The Schoolmasters, incidentally, have won only four out of their last 24 games to drop from first place to the cellar in five weeks

SWISS DEEPEN DEFENSE AREA, MINE BRIDGES

Complete 'Maginot Line' May Be Built by Nations as Economy Measure.

(By United Press)

ZURICH — Switzerland may build a Maginot Line along its frontiers on the theory that if the present war lasts the fortifications will pay for themselves.

For the Swiss are paying 5,000,000 francs ($931,000) every day to keep their frontiers manned. Military experts calculate the force could be reduced by one-third if there was a wall of steel and concrete like the Maginot Line.

The saving of one-third of the amount being expended could be used to construct the fortifications. At the same time men would be released for civilian duties and constructive work.

In the meantime, Gen Henri Guisan, to whom the Confederacy has entrusted the task of defending Switzerland's 650-year-old independence, has been studying the lessons of the war in Poland.

Lines Are Deepened.

The ineffective resistance of the Polish troops to the heavy German mechanized forces has been noted by the Swiss command. Although their country has the advantage of mountainous terrain, they are developing second and third defense lines.

These lines extend far into the interior of Switzerland. All bridges, main roads and stretches of open country are being mined wherever an invading army would be likely to pass after breaking through the front line fortifications.

Despite the Swiss authorities' decision to "keep all lights burning," especially in the frontier districts, to prevent violations of Swiss territory by foreign warplanes, these infringements are reported steadily on the increase —and usually in the daytime.

Not only does the Swiss high command want to prevent reconnaisance flights over the defenses but it does not want the Swiss sky to become a battlefield during any large-scale air battles on the Western front.

Swiss anti-aircraft sections are active in firing warning shots, and the observer corps is gradually becoming more efficient at reporting the approach of aircraft.

Severe steps have been taken to prevent Switzerland from becoming—as in the last war—a hotbed of espionage and counter-espionage of all belligerent nations. During the World war, authorities stepped in when it was too late and were unable to check the activities of political and military agents—especially of Germany.

All aliens entering the country are submitted to a rigorous control. All aliens now in Switzerland are being quietly observed. As a result some hundreds of Germans and Austrians—some of them refugees, it is said—have been rounded up. They entered the country illegally.

The 140 hatcheries of the Kansas Hatcherymen's association are expected to hatch. 27,000,000 chicks in 1940, officials of the organization reported recently at a convention here.

Popeye Helps Hoover Collect Funds For Finns

Former President Herbert Hoover, head of the Finnish Relief Fund, is introduced to Popeye (posed by Harry F. Welch) by Ward Greene, executive editor of King Features Syndicate which owns and distributes the famous comic strip. Popeye, who appears daily in The News-Journal, is handing Mr. Hoover $100 in bills, his contribution "jes' to get the Kids' Popeye Finnish Relief Fund started." Popeye and Mr. Hoover are asking boys and girls in peaceful America to give their dimes, nickles and pennies to Popeye's fund to help feed the hungry little children in war-torn Finland.

FINNISH FUND GETS 'SHOT' OF SPINACH AS POPEYE SENDS AID

And now who, do you think, has come to the aid of the Finnish Relief Fund? Who but that national champion of the week, that famous spinach-eater—Popeye!

The Finnish Relief fund, which is being raised in America under the direction of former president, Herbert Hoover, received a "shot" of spinach today when Popeye, famous King Features Syndicate character and a leading member of The News-Journal comic family, gave his "kontribushon" of $100 to the fund and issued an appeal to all the boys and girls in America to give their small "kontribushons."

The big-armed, soft-hearted sailor was "presenked" to Hoover by Ward Greene, executive editor of King Features, and when he handed over his $100 he said.

"I wish it was more, Mr. Hoover but mebbe my little friends in the old U. S. will help ole Popeye. We don't wanna let those kids in Finland go without no food ner spinach."

Popeye previously had written Mr. Hoover a letter asking his permission to start a fund "to give the boys and girls of America a chance to donate their pennies to buy bread and spinach for the hundry little Finnish boys and girls."

"I yam not astin' enny little boy or girl to give more than one dime," the letter continued, "and if anybody ain't got a whole dime a nickel or penny will do. But if ennyobdy has got lots of dimes they can send them all in if their papas and mamas sez so.

"Instead of sendin' the dimes, nickels and pennies direck to me, I wants the boys and girls to send or bring them to their favorik newspapers. The editors can rush the money to your office, Mr. Hoover, and p'raps I can come by there and see who it is from and help ya count it.

"I sure wishes ya success with your exter fine work in helping feed the Finns, Mr. Hoover. I likes the Finns on account they pays their debts, Yours for humaniky, POPEYE."

The News-Journal has served as a collecting agency for the Finnish Fund for Mansfield and vicinity in the past two months and $635.05 has been contributed to date.

All of Popeyes small friends in Mansfield and vicinity may help their "ole friend"—and the gallant boys and girls of Finland—by bringing their dimes and nickles —even their pennies—to The News-Journal office.

Latest contributors to the fund are Forest Riblet, R. D. 4; Paul Cropper, 468 West Third street, and Roland Peck, 77 East First street.

One is for laboratory service rendered the health department at the cost of $115 a month and the other calls for a continuation of the $4.25 daily rate for room service for indigent patients. The bills are to be paid from a $15,000 appropriation set up in the financing bill.

Woman Escapes Jail, Loses Game Of Hide-and-Seek

DAYTON, O.—(U.P.)—Sally Reynolds, 29, who escaped from Dayton's central police station by jumping 15 feet from a second story window and played hide-and-seek with police for an hour, was back in jail today.

Miss Reynolds, alias Marie Daily, formerly of Columbus, is wanted by Grand Rapids, Mich., authorities on an armed robbery charge.

Dressed only in a sweater and skirt, she ran away from the police station in sub-freezing weather and took refuge in a rooming house. Harry Boyce, 48, a railroad brakeman, was held for questioning on suspicion that he aided her escape.

Miss Reynolds and Nora Price, 23, also of Columbus, were arrested a week ago on suspicion. Police were awaiting information on them from federal authorities.

Pieces of cloth and cotton were found in the women's cell and police believed they had intended to bind a night matron. Miss Price did not try to escape.

PORCH FILES DIVORCE SUIT

Councilman Charges Neglect, Says Wife Left Home In 1938.

Russell D. Porch, 275 Wood street, city councilman from the First ward, had filed a divorce action in common pleas court today against Mrs. Jean L. Porch of Richmond, Va.

In his petition Porch charged neglect and extreme cruelty, asserting that his wife left home in 1938 and has refused to return.

She has neglected her home, is indifferent to him, and informed him several months ago that she no longer has any affection for him, Porch said in his petition.

The couple was married June 14, 1936. There are no children.

station. It will be built about 20 feet west of the old depot which will not be demolished until the new one is ready.

Entrance to the station will be on the south side next to the tracks. A large waiting room will extend the entire width of the building and there will be a ticket office and baggage room at the north end of the structure, to the right of the entrance. At the other end will be rest rooms for men and women.

Provides More Parking Space.

Because the new depot will be farther to the west of North Mulberry street, more parking space will be available and it will be easier to reach from automobiles, Harsh said.

Announcement of plans for the station climaxed a several years' campaign of the Chamber of Commerce and other business and civic groups for adequate passenger station facilities in the city.

When the new B. and O. depot and the remodeling of the Pennsylvania station are completed, Mansfield will have adequate and modern passenger facilities for the first time in years.

Harsh said the decision to build the new station resulted primarily from a 70 per cent increase in the company's business in Mansfield last year.

"Passenger and freight revenue went up from $87,000 in 1938 to $150,000 last year and the company takes this method of showing its appreciation to the city," Harsh said.

He pointed out that B. and O. officials proposed to build a station here nearly 20 years ago, but the plan was dismissed when a controversy developed in the city over a union station to serve all three railroads in Mansfield.

Later plans to build a station were defeated by the depression and falling revenues, he said.

G. L. Draffan is chairman of the Chamber of Commerce passenger stations committee which heard Harsh's report at yesterday's special meeting. Other members of the committee are C. H. Henkel, Mayor William J. Locke, J. M. Hill, C. A. Hines, F. B. Mahoney, L. E. Osborne, G. W. Stephens, P. K. Tappan, S. Glenn Vinson, C. K. Smaltz and J. W. Graham.

The committee thanked Harsh for submitting the plans and assured him that the railroad will have the full cooperation of the Chamber of Commerce in completing the project.

"This is one of the improvements the Chamber has worked for for a number of years and we feel that announcement of plans for a new station is the achievement of a goal," John G. Routzon, secretary-manager, said.

RECOVERY EVEN AS TAPE MAKES MILD COMEBACK

Bethlehem and General Motors Lead; War News Has Little Effect.

(By Associated Press)

NEW YORK —(AP)— Fractional recoveries were well distributed in today's stock market but many issues remained in the depressed column.

While advances predominated near the second hour, dealings were apathetic.

Attracting mild support were Bethlehem, General Motors, American Telephone, Consolidated Edison, and Great Northern. Inclined to lag were Chrysler, Anaconda, American Can, and N. Y. Central.

European securities markets steadied. Bonds and commodities were a shade uneven.

Cover For Comeback.

Wall Street had little in the way of rallying news to go on, but the substantial 4-day decline in stocks inspired short covering here and there, and buying for a technical comeback.

Foreign war news apparently was unexciting for the speculative forces.

A bolstering market influence was seen in statements of Federal Reserve Member banks in 101 cities for the week ended Jan. 10, disclosing commercial, industrial and agricultural loans increased $10,000,000 following a fall of $47,000,000 in the preceding week.

Helpful also were moderators optimistic expressions of merchants attending the annual convention of the National Retail Dry Goods association. Most seemed to feel that "not a boom, but a pretty good business year" was in store for 1940.

Prospects were said to be bright for sales exceeding those of 1939.

PAN-AMERICAS TO RE-ENFORCE SEA NEUTRALITY

Would Put Teeth in 'Zone' by Revoking Privileges of Belligerents.

(By Associated Press)

RIO DE JANEIRO — Faced with Great Britain's rejection of the 300-mile American safety zone, an inter-American neutrality committee today sought concrete means of enforcing the "keep out" sign for all belligerents.

Despite Britain's note describing the zone as "ineffective," Prof. Charles Fenwick, United States representative on the committee representing 21 republics, said in an interview:

"We have privileges, which both sides want, which we could deny if they (the belligerents) adopt a refractory attitude. We believe through history the belligerents had their way too long in extending their way to every quarter of the globe."

The committee, consisting of seven experts named by the Pan American union governing board, had for consideration in its closed session today the following proposals to enforce the zone:

1—An agreement of the republics to prevent belligerent warships from obtaining supplies or making ship repairs in Pan American ports after they have committed acts of war inside the zone.

2—An agreement to prevent merchant ships from taking supplies from Pan American ports to belligerent ships inside the zone.

3—An accord to ban submarines from entering Pan American harbors.

4—Co-ordination of interpretations of international law relating to neutrality into a Pan American neutrality code.

Would Not Fight.

Fenwick, professor of international law at Bryn Mawr college, said he did not propose that American republics "fight for the right to be neutral," but declared that belligerents could be kept out if the republics—~~united~~ on means of enforcing the zone.

Dr. Oswaldo, Aranha, Brazilian foreign minister, said the committee would proceed on the keynote that "if European nations have the right to establish a war zone, then American nations have the right to establish a peace zone and American nations have as much right as European nations to insist upon respect."

In a note to the president of Panama as representative of the 21 republics, Great Britain expressed concern that the zone would provide a "vast sanctuary" for German warcraft.

The note was in reply to a protest against violation of the zone delivered by Panama as representative of the republics after the Dec. 13 battle between three British cruisers and the German pocket battleship Admiral Graf Spee off the coast of Uruguay.

Committee Denies Funds for Two New Deal Agencies

URGES HOUSE SLASH BUDGET BY 43 MILLIONS

Independent Offices Bill Heads for Big Cut; Planning Board, Reports Bureau Lose Out.

(By Associated Press)

WASHINGTON — Completely denying funds for two agencies created by President Roosevelt, the House Appropriations committee slashed budget estimates for the government's "independent offices" today by $43,492,166.

In recommending that Congress appropriate only $1,151,212,307 of the $1,194,704,473 asked by Mr. Roosevelt, the committee trimmed $25,000,000 from the Maritime commission's estimate or $200,000,000 for the ship construction fund.

Because of contract authorizations, however, it appeared that this saving was only temporary and would have to be restored later under the 10-year ship building program.

The national resources planning board and the office of government reports—formerly the national emergency council—were the Roosevelt agencies denied funds by the committee. These offices were transferred to the White House under the reorganization plan last summer.

The committee turned down President Roosevelt's request for $1,060,000 for the planning board and $1,055,000 for the reports office with the explanation that it could find nothing in "legislative history" authorizing their existence.

'Inevitable Delays' Cited.

President Roosevelt's Uncle Frederic Delano, is chairman of the resources board.

The independent offices bill provides funds for most federal agencies not in the regular departments.

Approving $175,000,000 for the Maritime commission's ship construction fund, the committee said it believed an additional $25,000,000 asked could be withheld for the present because of "inevitable delays which are encountered in a program of this character."

The total cut listed under the heading, "executive offices of the president," was $2,136,400, although no reduction was made in any of the sums proposed for the White House itself. This sum included the reductions in the planning board and office of government reports and small items.

Immediate house consideration was asked for the bill.

The biggest real whack was taken at the federal Works agency which was crated in last year's reorganization. The committee cut $14,397,290 from this agency, recommending $188,113,270 for its purposes.

Despite the cuts, the committee asserted that the total recommended in the bill was $34,766,375 more than comparable appropriations for the current year, because of the Maritime commission's building program only $100,000,000 was provided for that program for the current year.

TRIAL PLANNED ON NEW CHARGE

Ashlander Freed on 1 Count; Denies Reckless Driving; Bound to Jury.

ASHLAND—Charges of driving while intoxicated against Donald Miller, Ashland R. D. 2, have been dismissed in the court of Justice of the Peace J. H. Armstrong here.

The charges were brought against Miller by Martin Snyder, truck driver, who claimed that on the night of Dec. 31, Miller's driving while in a state of intoxication crasned into Snyder's truck with his passenger car.

The charges against Miller were dismissed because of lack of sufficient evidence, Justice Armstrong said, but Miller was not free to go.

He was then charged by Snyder on a second warrant which cited him with reckless driving. He pleaded guilty, but would not waive jury trial.

He was bound over to the county grand jury under bond of $200, and was released when he posted bond.

Miller was injured in the accident which resulted on route 250 north of Ashland, and spent two days in Samaritan hospital.

EXTRADITION OF MAN, 27, ASKED

Youngstown Officials Want Him On Charges Of Bigamy.

COLUMBUS — (INS) — Youngstown authorities today asked Governor Bricker to seek the extradition of Donald Stone, 27, from Pittsburgh.

Stone is wanted on a bigamy charge arising from his marriage to Annie Hutchinson, 18-year-old Canton school girl, whose disappearance from her home was signalized by a kidnap scare. FBI men took part in a nationwide search for the girl after her mother received a ransom note shortly after the girl's disappearance Dec. 1.

Stone, whose home is in Clarion, Pa., married Miss Hutchinson in Youngstown Nov. 25, while he allegedly had a wife in Cleveland.

DISCOVERS AMERICAN BRIGADE TRAINING TO FIGHT WITH FINNS

(By International News Service)

LONDON—Existence in Finland of an "American Brigade" was reported by Goeffrey Cox in a dispatch to the London Daily Express today from "somewhere in Finland."

Cox reported that he had watched the brigade in training and interviewed two of its members, Arthur Williams of the Bronx, New York, and Lawrence Heidemann of Detroit, Mich.

Williams, a house painter, was quoted as saying:

"I said to my wife the night before the Finnish war started: "I'm going to get up 10 minutes earlier tomorrow and hear the first news broadcast. There's going to be trouble.'

"The announcer said: 'Here are the headlines today. Russia invades Finland by land, sea and air.' I turned to my wife and said: "'I'm off!'"

Changes His Mind.

Heidemann, 27, a former student at the University of Michigan, was quoted as saying:

"When the war broke out I was in Helsinki on a vacation and study tour.

"I saw the first bombs fall. First I said to myself:

"'This is not my business. My father is a Finn but my interest lies in the United States.'

"So I let the American legation evacuate me to Stockholm. There suddenly I saw things differently and came back. It's my fight."

SEEK WPA AID IN $144,000 WORK PROGRAM

City Officials Present Plan for Extensive Water and Sewer Improvements.

A delegation of city officials headed by Mayor William J. Locke went to Columbus today to discuss with WPA authorities a proposed $144,000 work relief program for Mansfield.

Accompanying the mayor was Service-Safety Director C. M. Crafton, C. N. Shultz, chairman of council's water committee and one of the city engineers.

City Engineer W. C. Statler said the group had taken the tentative proposal to WPA headquarters.

He said the draft included extensive construction of sewer and water lines throughout the city, the major portion of the job calling for the extension of the high capacity main which was constructed on Lexington avenue two years ago. The plan proposes the extension of the line which now bottlenecks at Blanche street, into the mercantile district.

The sewer extensions, most of which are in the sanitary system, include various jobs throughout the city.

Of the total cost of the project, the city's share has been estimated at $60,000 while the federal government is asked to spend $84,000.

The proposal is designed to provide 175 men with work for an eight-month period.

LIGHT DOCKET

Only 3 Cases Before Court of Appeals in Session Here.

The Fifth district appeals court convened today at the Richland county courthouse to hear three cases, one of the lightest dockets in months.

The jury was expected to complete its work in the county by shortly afternoon, but decisions in the cases probably will not be ready until later this week. C. A. McKinley, common pleas court assignment clerk, said.

Scheduled for hearing by the court were cases involving an order to remove a dam on the Jacob Leuthner farm east of Mansfield, a dispute over the guardianship of Robert Gurney and others as minors, and an order to require the Mansfield Savings Trust National bank as trustee to release certain property in its possession.

The dam on the Leuthner farm was built by the Pennsylvania railroad to provide a water supply for locomotives. Leuthner contended that it caused a stream to overflow his farm. The railroad company appealed from a common pleas order instructing it to remove the dam.

For Joyful Cough Relief, Try This Home Mixture

Real Relief. Big Saving. So Easy. No Cooking.

This splendid recipe is used by millions every year, because it makes such a dependable, effective remedy for coughs due to colds. It's so easy to mix—a child could do it.

From any druggist, get 2½ ounces of Pinex, a compound containing Norway Pine and palatable guaiacol, in concentrated form, well-known for its soothing effect on throat and bronchial membranes.

Then make a syrup by stirring two cups of granulated sugar and one cup of water a few moments, until dissolved. It's no trouble at all, and takes but a moment. No cooking needed.

Put the Pinex into a pint bottle and add your syrup. This gives you a full pint of very effective and quick-acting cough remedy, and you get about four times as much for your money. It never spoils, and is very pleasant—children love it.

You'll be amazed by the way it takes hold of coughs, giving you delightful relief. It loosens the phlegm, soothes the irritated membranes, and helps clear the air passages. Money refunded if not pleased in every way.

20 Finnish Cities Hit By Air Raids.

BULLETIN

HELSINKI—(U.P.)—An official communique today said that a Russian attack on the Karelian isthmus had been repulsed with heavy losses and that two Russian companies had been broken up on the front near Salla.

HELSINKI—(INS)—Russian air raids left a trail of death and destruction in more than 20 Finnish cities and towns today while bitter cold descended over the country, virtually halting military operations on the Karelian and Eastern fronts.

The cities attacked by Russian planes included Viborg (Viipuri), the country's second largest city, and the southwestern port of Turku.

About 400 Soviet planes rained bombs upon houses and streets, killing and wounding scores of persons—most of them women, according to Finnish authorities.

In the far north on the Petsamo front there were signs that the Russians were preparing for a new major offensive as soon as the weather permits. Russian planes in that area subjected Finnish communications to severe bombing assaults.

On the Salla front two Russian divisions were reported still holding out and some reports stated they were advancing. Finnish patrols there were reported concentrating on hand-grenade attacks against Soviet field kitchens

Reds Hurl New Charge At Sweden, Norway.

COPENHAGEN—(AP)—A Soviet Russian broadcast accusing Sweden of forcing the unemployed to fight for Finland increased today the strain of relations between the U. S. S. R. and Scandinavian countries.

Russia previously expressed dissatisfaction with replies of Sweden and Norway to her complaint that they were sending men and supplies to the embattled Finns and permitting anti-Soviet press campaigns.

Meanwhile, the Swedish and Norwegian governments last night directed their ministers in Moscow to protest alleged violations of their borders by Soviet planes.

The Swedish foreign office said 10 bombs had been dropped on the Swedish island of Kallaks Sunday and that one of the nine Russian planes sighted was believed to have made a forced landing in Sweden.

The Norwegian foreign office, protesting "a breach of neutrality," said several Russian planes had flown over Norway between Jan. 12 and 14 and that one landed on Norwegian soil.

Norwegian anti-aircraft guns were fired at some of the planes Sunday near Kirkenes, on the extreme northern border of Norway and Finland.

DOUGLAS J. HILL LEAPS TO DEATH

Son of Empire Head Believed to Have Been Despondent Over Poor Health.

he was not well came in recent letters in which he said he was unable to get much rest at the dormitory because of noise. Only Saturday he moved into the Scorpion fraternity house. He had recently been made a pledge of the campus group.

In a letter to his parents which was mailed Sunday night and which they received this morning, he wrote that he was very happily situated in his new room, described everything about it, and spoke of his plans to take part in his fraternity's activities this winter.

Young Hill's body was found in a deep gorge 200 feet under a suspension bridge, according to Associated Press dispatches. It was sighted by Prof. George L. Hamilton, who called police.

Oliver Henkel, treasurer at Empire, left last night for Ithaca and will return tomorrow morning with the body.

Young Hill, who had spent a happy Christmas and holiday vacation with his parents here and with his sister, Mrs. Kenneth Benzing at Willamette, Ill., entered Cornell last September.

He was born at Canton Oct. 6, 1921 and attended school there until his freshman year in high school. Then, because of frail health, he was sent to Culver Military school where he spent three years and graduated last June with cum laude honors.

He was a member of the crack Black Horse troop and was one of the top bracket honor students in all his classes. He was also a member of the Scroll and Quill, journalistic society of the school.

After graduating from Culver he spent the summer at Camp Custer, where he completed his work with a second degree lieutenancy, which was withheld until he should have reached his majority.

Soon after entering Cornell he was pledged into the Scorpions. He returned to school from Mansfield only a week ago last Thursday after a two weeks' vacation.

He was a member of First Presbyterian church of Mansfield. Private funeral services will be held at 10 a. m. Thursday at the Jones funeral home with Rev. David N. Roller officiating. The body will be placed in the mausoleum at Mansfield cemetery. Friends of the family may call at the funeral home until 9:30 a. m. Thursday.

Young Devenney was injured when a car in which he was riding, driven by his brother, Willard, 33, turned over several times after clipping the rear end of a truck driven by D. W. Willard was treated at the hospital for facial lacerations and released.

Board Sets Up Boundary Lines and Staffs for Appleseed and Simpson Buildings.

its. Following First street west to Wood street, it will go north on Wood street to Marion avenue, west on Marion avenue to Sherman avenue, north to Summit street, west on Summit to Brinkerhoff avenue, south on Brinkerhoff to Maple street, and west on Maple street to Home road at the western limits of the city.

All pupils who live on the north side of the line will attend John Simpson school and those south of the line will go to the new Johnny Appleseed building on Cline avenue. Pupils living across the street from each other on the boundary streets will attend different schools.

All pupils transported by bus will attend the Johnny Appleseed school, however, since that school will have a smaller enrollment.

Under the plan approved by the board, enrollment at the John Simpson school will be 822 while there will be 642 enrolled at the Johnny Appleseed building for a total of 1,464.

Miller said that only a small part of the pupils will be more than one mile from school under the new plan. He explained that enrollment at the Johnny Appleseed school was kept below that of the John Simpson building because of anticipated growth in the southwest section of the city.

When the new buildings are opened, the Hedges building will be used exclusively as a grade school, and a part of it will be made into a gymnasium and auditorium.

Junior high pupils have been attending classes at the Hedges building, John Simpson annex, in the Warner building on Main street and in a building on Bowman street since the old John Simpson structure was razed last winter.

Teachers assigned to the new Johnny Appleseed school are:

Anita Strauch, Dorotha Shaffer, Ruth Seybold, Margaret Wheeler, Helen White, Helen Herring, Brooks Huber, Dorothy Moser, Harold Ramsey, Nellie McIlvaine, John J. Thoms, Nelson Neff, Robert Y. APPOINTS NURSE

Mayor Names Gloris Linnean to Health Post.

SHELBY—Mrs. Gloris Roth Linnean was appointed Shelby public health nurse by Mayor William R. Morris last night at the regular session of city council. Her appointment was confirmed by council.

She succeeds Miss Elsie McPherson, former city health nurse, who asked for an indefinite leave of absence because of ill health. Mrs. Ross Sipe, who has served as health nurse since Miss McPherson's absence, was again appointed relief nurse. The salary for the health nurse is $110 a month.

The council elected Councilman Ross Sipe to succeed Chester Bell, former city councilman, on the firemen's pension board. A resignation handed in by Councilman Kenneth Rothlisberger from the same board was rejected by the council. Councilmen Sipe and Rothlisberger represent the council on the board.

A report read by J. P. Adkins, utilities superintendent, showed that the municipal electric company had a surplus of some $61,000 at the end of 1939, an increase of about $5,000 for the year. The plant retired $18,000 in bonds during the past year. The business for the past year showed an increase of about 10 per cent, Adkins said.

and red-haired, was in one of the beds and she assured the doctor that her "time" had come, though, according to her mathematics, it shouldn't come until March 25. He quickly verified her diagnosis.

He put Short to heating water. He sent Mrs. Short's mother for some of the neighbors and one of the neighbors took the Shorts' five children, the oldest, 10. He moved the bed around a little so it would get more of the heat from the logs burning in the fire place. Then he rolled up his sleeves and scrubbed his hands.

At 8 p. m. Mrs. Short gave birth to a girl. Dr. Sankey had barely slapped her into healthy screaming, when a second girl arrived. He slapped this one too, and handed her to a neighbor woman. Then, to his amazement, a third girl was born.

"Doctor," said the neighbor woman, "do you reckon that's all."

"No," said Dr. Sankey, for though the illumination provided by an oil lamp and a flashlight was not good, he could see that Mrs. Short still was in labor. He had been unable to give her an anaesthetic of any kind and she seemed to be growing very weak.

"Hurry with that water," he ordered and went to work.

At 9:20 p. m., one hour and 20 minutes after the first, the fourth babe—a boy—was born.

After the mother had been cared for and the babies washed, he cooled some of the boiling water in a tea kettle and fed it to them from a teaspoon, drop by drop. Then he wrapped them in blankets and laid them on the bed, end to end, their mother's body giving them warmth on one side, the fire on the other.

He went home at 12:30 a. m. and returned at 8 a. m. yesterday, with a hot water bottle, blankets, and a can of milk. He fed the babies with a teaspoon again, then came back to get Mrs. Marguerite Rowland, a nurse. At noon, an ambulance took the mother and the babies to the hospital.

Mrs. Short said she wanted the girls named Faith, Hope and Charity, and would think of a name for the boy later. Mrs. Rowland could not tell the babies apart so, in the knitted caps, she put safety pins, one for Faith, two for Hope, and three for Charity.

"That's right," said Dr. Sankey, watching her. "For the greatest of these is charity."

The babes had not been weighed separately. Together, they weighed about 12 pounds.

The mother's condition was reported to be good.

Short, the father, had very little to say beyond expressing surprise.

AN INDEPENDENT NEWSPAPER

MANSFIELD, OHIO, TUESDAY, JANUARY 16, 1940.

The jitterbug craze is said to be waning—but 1940 can surely be depended upon to develop something equally nutty.

Census takers may have a tough time of it. The very idea of asking everybody thirty questions without offering any prizes for the correct answers!

Word comes that local chapters of the National Liars club will make an intensive effort to enlist all amateur eligibles—barring only the political professionals.

New B & O Station For Mansfield

EVERYTHING comes to those who wait—if they keep everlastingly plugging while they're waiting.

Confirmation of the "waiting"—and working—proverb was brought forcefully to the attention of the passenger stations committee of the Mansfield Chamber of Commerce Monday afternoon when members of that committee were called together to hear an announcement that this city is soon to have a new Baltimore & Ohio railroad passenger station—that plans have been completed, money appropriated, and the station to be erected by early spring.

While the element of complete surprise is lacking from this announcement, the promptness with which the decision was made and the speed with which the improvement is to be carried through, is gratifying to those who have worked so earnestly in this behalf for many years.

Mansfield's railroad passenger stations have been the problem children in this city's program of progress for a long time, and year after year, for more than a third of a century, this subject has had a regular place on the Chamber of Commerce agenda.

Changing conditions made impractical an earlier idea that this city should have a union station and later emphasis has been on rehabilitation or replacement of present outmoded structures.

Financial conditions during the past decade have seriously hampered railroads in carrying through such projects, regardless of how badly they were needed, but increases in railroad revenues through 1939, with Mansfield business showing an appreciable gain, have made these long-awaited local improvements practicable.

Persistent efforts of the Chamber of Commerce, coupled with very evident interest on the part of railroad officials, have resulted in both projects running along almost identical lines, the outcome being that finally, only a few weeks apart, it is definitely announced that the Pennsylvania station, which is also occupied by the Erie railroad, is to be reconstructed and enlarged, and that the Baltimore & Ohio railroad is to build an entirely new station.

As the railroad which is the successor of the pioneer venture that resulted in the first railroad train coming into Mansfield on June 19, 1846, something of sentiment attaches to the Baltimore & Ohio railroad among many residents of this community, and their appreciation is expressed to those B. & O. officials, in various capacities, who have been largely responsible by activities within the past few months, for placing this improvement on Mansfield's 1940 program of progress.

And, by the way, might it not be possible to have the dedication of the new B. & O. station on Wednesday, June 19—the ninety-fourth anniversary of the date on which the first railroad train came into Mansfield?

Almost Forgotten Birthdate

ASIDE from keeping in mind the birthdates of Washington and Lincoln, few persons bother to remember birthday anniversaries, regardless of the prominence of those to whom reference is made.

Not many will recall, for instance, that tomorrow is the 234th anniversary of the birth of Benjamin Franklin, whose impress on American history and whose contribution to common-sense thinking gives him high rank among his contemporaries and a lasting place in history.

As a self-educated scientist and inventor, and a writer of "Poor Richard's" homely philosophy and humor, Franklin's name has carried through successive generations to greater extent than that of many others with whom he was associated. His famous kite-flying experiment, as a part of his investigation of electrical phenomena, served especially well in bringing him to early notice of all school children and to inspire them to read more about him.

The thrift aphorisms of Franklin, as credited to "Poor Richard," are particularly worthy of being kept alive through this period of reckless spending, and his observation, "It is hard for an empty sack to stand upright" is as true today as when written.

Driving Without Proper Lights

AN ITEM in yesterday's paper which mentioned an arrest, and fine assessed, for driving after dark without lights turned on, serves to direct attention to the fact that state law and city ordinance require that motor vehicles driven on streets or highways show TWO headlights and a tail-light from shortly after sundown until daylight.

It is habitual, among a number of Mansfield motorists, to delay turning on lights until long after the time prescribed by law, and it is not uncommon for many drivers in Mansfield and vicinity to go along for days, possibly weeks, without replacing a burned out headlight or tail-light bulb. This is also against the law but enforcement officers have apparently paid no attention to this offense, even to the extent of warning "one-eye" drivers, as is done in many cities.

While it might seem unfair to arrest and fine one offender among the many violators of the same traffic regulation, the incident at least brings the subject to public notice in a way that may be a warning to others, and thus tend to reduce this dangerous practice.

Better Roads Help Industry

LAST YEAR there were 3,325,000 automobiles and trucks built in this country. The forecast for the present year is 4,000,000. Production in a banner year during the late 'twenties was 5,000,000.

One reason for the new gains is the roads. The federal government itself improved or built 17,000 miles of highway last year, and state and local construction would run into additional thousands of miles. The country's highway plant is now in far better condition, especially on main thoroughfares, than it has ever been before.

With better roads, and fewer rural points left inaccessible because of muddy road in fall and winter, thrifty buyers have come to look upon [illegible] as necessary equipment—and able to buy them—and buying helps the automotive industry, and that helps industry in general.

Man About Manhattan

—By GEORGE TUCKER

NEW YORK—As my secretary was thoughtless enough to elope with a trombone player over the holidays, I'll have to answer these letters myself:

Dear T. H. M., Flint, Mich. The restaurant that hires only red-headed waitresses is in the basement of 50 Rockefeller Plaza, but I wouldn't recommend that you come to New York solely on the strength of your crimson tresses. Since red hair is mandatory, no doubt they have a waiting list. They would almost have to have one. In case you are still determined, perhaps it would be best to state your qualifications in a letter to the manager of the News Center Restaurant.

Dear P. M., Ft. Worth, Tex., I have forgotten his name, but the beardless cowboy I had in mind told me he was from Denton, Texas, and that his dad had once owned a vast ranch but had lost it. He came here hoping for some rodeo prize-money, and when that failed to materialize he was in a bad fix. We got him some victuals and put him on a train for Texas, and the last we saw of him he was grinning, and waving that big sombrero.

DEAR M. R. G., Steubenville, O., Blue Barron does use the same musical signature, "Sometimes I'm Happy," that the late Henry Thies made famous, but the arrangements are different. Henry's was based on an unforgettable trombone solo. I knew Henry well and, like everyone else, was stunned at his death. Since then I have tried vainly to find a recording of his signature, but presumably he never made one.

Dear L. R., St. Louis, Mo., Peter de Rose, who has written hundreds of songs, including "Deep Purple," is the same man who is the husband of May Singhi Breen. I think they have been on the air 15 or 16 years, and recently N. B. C. gave them a birthday party. From now on no matter what De Rose does he will always be plagued with "Deep Purple," similar to the way Rachmaninoff is by his Prelude. Everywhere he goes they play it. His very appearance is the signal for the orchestra to swing into that very lovely melody. The last time I saw him, and then only long enough to say hello, was New Year's Eve at the New Yorker. Paul Whiteman immediately played the number, and with spotlights beating down on him, De Rose had to rise and bow to the crowd. There were other composers of note present, but Peter de Rose was the only one given this recognition.

DEAR Z. N., Honolulu, I gave Ray Kinney and everyone else your message, but was so late in doing it that you will be able to tell them yourself in a little while now. Ray is winding up a long and successful engagement here and is going home for a vacation. Lani McIntyre is taking his place at Hawaiian Room. I didn't see Elmer Lee. This is just a fill-in until I can give you a decent answer.

Dear J. D., Oakland, Calif., I'll certainly give Horace Heidt your message. He is going very big here now, and his records are among the leaders. When he went with Columbia they told him that he could name his own numbers and have full say with every recording he made.

Dear Secretary, I certainly hope your husband loves you, because I don't any more. I can't find the key to my files. You left everything so orderly that I can't find anything I want. May your children plague your old age, and if any of them turn out to be girls I hope they marry newspapermen.

Authors On Stamps.

There has been some tendency to poke fun at Postmaster General Farley and his philatelistic flourishes with so many different stamp issues. The collectors have been kept in a flutter and the common buyers and lickers have been vaguely baffled by the number of commemorated historical events they had not known much about if at all.

However, it is safe to assume that critics and collectors alike will be pleased with the forthcoming famous American series, the first of which will bear the familiar likeness of five authors loved by their countrymen. They are Ralph Waldo Emerson, Louisa May Alcott, Mark Twain, Washington Irving and James Fenimore Cooper. The pictures will stir happy memories for millions.—Toledo Blade.

Congress Needs Finance Wizard

—By CHARLES P. STEWART

WANTED—A financial wizard who can tell congress how to cut down the cost of government, as a whole, without reducing any single item of its expenditures.

Or, if the wizard can't do that, let him explain how it can go on spending at its present rate without running a few annual billions into the red, as it's been doing for the past decade, but also without any increase in taxation.

A wizard who can solve one or the other or both of these two problems can count on a liberal reward from Capitol Hill, if he'll go ahead and do it. Even if a formal appropriation can't be voted to reward him, I'll bet the lawmakers would subscribe liberally out of their individual pockets to a fund in his behalf.

Senators and representatives, as we know, generally agree that Uncle Sam's already outstanding indebtedness, approaching 45 billions, is a great plenty. Each legislator wants all the others to vote for economy—but no economy as to his own particular state or district. This adds up to the effect that it's next to impossible to get an economy majority in either congressional chamber.

There's an antidote to increasing deficits——higher taxes. But what solon likes to vote for higher taxes, especially in an election year? Echo answers, "not one of 'em—with the lone exception of Senator Robert M. LaFollette, who's advocated stiffer levies on income taxpayers."

Hard-Boiled Mr. Morgenthau.

Congress tries to put the puzzle up to the treasury, which hands it right back again — and mighty successfully.

Treasury Secretary Henry Morgenthau takes this hard-boiled attitude:

"You senators and representatives decree certain expenditures. Then you provide certain taxes to foot the bill. The taxes you provide aren't sufficient to do it. So we run into the hole.

"Whose fault is it? Yours, of course. It's none of my executive responsibility."

It's an argument which congress finds it very difficult to reply to satisfactorily. It irritates the legislators, however. They point out among themselves (not for publication) that Secretary Morgenthau can afford to be brash and sassy because his job's appointive: he isn't answerable to a lot of voters, as they are. He only has to have President Roosevelt's approval and the president sides with him.

More Business, More Taxes.

The administration's theory is that improving business will increase the total of tax collections without increasing the rate. That is to say:

Suppose a concern pays 10 per cent to the government on a million dollars' worth of business annually. And suppose its business gets so much better than its million is transformed into two millions. The government accordingly gets twice as much as it previously was getting, without any increase in the 10 per cent levy.

That's how administration economists reason. It's the correct way, they assure us, to wipe out our deficits in future and to start liquidating the indebtedness we've already accumulated.

It sounds attractive.

Pessimists suggest though, that prosperity will have to "go some" to get the country back on a spot cash basis henceforward, to say nothing of cancelling the 40-odd billion collection of deficits that it's piled up thus far.

What's Worrying Congress?

Anyway, what's worrying congress is how to meet the immediate situation.

The average senator or representative isn't greatly perturbed as to conditions which may confront some congress a couple of generations hence; possibly Uncle Sam will be in the black again by that time.

The problem now is:

How to economize without economizing? How to scoop in more government money without boosting taxation rates?

These are practical political questions. And they're urgent.

Health and Diet

Young With Acne Suffer Torture.

—By LOGAN CLENDENING, M. D.

ONE of the torturing things about adolescence occurs to that unhappy minority which suffers from pimples or acne. While this may be a joke to other people, it is not only serious but tragic to the young victim.

It is no comfort to him to tell him that the condition will wear off; that when he gets to be 25 or 30 years old, he will look like everybody else. He realizes in his heart that it is his birthright to have a peaches and cream complexion, and the sight of crops of ugly pimples engenders a felling of deep resentment against the powers of the universe. It interferes with his appearance, his dignity and his love-making, which are the principal preoccupations of the youth, male and female, from the age of 13 to 18.

Inasmuch as at this period of life all the endocrine glands are in a lather of activity, it is natural to conclude, theoretically, that there is a relationship between the skin infection and some disturbance of the glands.

Gland Extracts Used.

On this basis treatment with thyroid extract and with pituitary extract has been extensively carried out. In some cases very striking and brilliant results have been obtained. There is, however, no way of telling exactly which case is going to respond. It may be put down as a truism that there certainly is no successful treatment which will apply to all cases of acne.

Attention to the diet is also a method of treatment which has been tried out very thoroughly. Patients are advised to abstain from sweets and fats. I have never seen the slightest result from such restrictions, and I think that it is time that it should be said quite definitely that it is cruel to impose these unnecessary restrictions on young people at the time when they most crave these articles of diet.

Certain dietary indulgences, however, do cause acute outbreaks of acne. The person who has it usually knows what these foods are; he finds them out by experience and very sensibly avoids them. There is no food, however, which applies to all cases.

Removal Of Grease.

Local treatment of the skin includes the removal of grease. There is no doubt that this occurs in greasy skins and that the infection invades the oil glands of the skin. It is in those crypts that the pustules occur. Treatment with strong soaps and frequent cleansings are a natural and sensible procedure.

Local treatment also includes the removal of the blackheads with a comedone extractor. A comedone extractor is a small celluloid instrument, on the end of which is a cup-like depression with a hole in the bottom. This is placed exactly over the blackhead and pressed down and the contents of the blackhead are expressed. The blackhead is simply a plugged up sebaceous or oil gland of the skin, and invites infection.

Drainage of the pus in the pimples that come to a head, the use of vaccines and the use of the x-ray — one of the qualities of which is to kill infection—are all established accessory methods of treatment.

Hauling Water

(A FARMER'S DIARY)

—By CALVIN A. BYERS

THE weather has been very dry about this section. Before cold weather starts we almost always have many days of rain, cold dreary rain and fog—then more rain—until lowlands are filled with water and stream beds, long dry, fill and come to life again. Little torrents stand full of muddy water.

Not so this fall. From last July until now only a few hours at a time of rain have appeared—then sun and wind. Even now dust along all gravel roads flies in thick clouds and muddies the snow banks. Late planted wheat and rye have scarcely peered above the surface of the ground. Some has not even fully sprouted. Earlier sowings look much better.

Now that winter has come the normal water table has receded so far that springs and wells that have not failed for 20 years are going dry.

I visited a neighbor on business. It was very cold, with a sharp penetrating wind. As I drove up I saw a team tandem by the well hitched to a big [illegible] load [illegible] with open box. A farmer and his son were filling them with water from this electric pump. Both seemed amply clothed, with heavy boots, thick top coats and mufflers about their ears, yet their faces were purplish with cold and they moved stiffly about swinging their hands against their chests for warmth.

"Do you have to haul all your water now," I asked.

"Not yet," the farmer said. "Our pump broke and its most too cold to fix it now. But our well is very low and we're afraid it may go any day. Three of our neighbors are hauling theirs, right now, from the creek a mile away. It's been 22 years, come next week, since it was as dry as this and then that creek they're hauling from was as dry as this road. It seems a thing is never quite so bad but somebody can remember when 'twas worse."

They turned their backs toward the stiff sharp wind while the milk can was filling. As they grabbed the vessel, oneside slipped and a heavy spray of water spilled down over the boy's coat and shoes. Soon that part of his apparel was frozen solid and they drove [illegible] against the horse's thighs and fairly glazed them with icy coating.

"Well, I'll get another load tonight," the farmer said.

WASHINGTON Merry-Go-Round

By DREW PEARSON and ROBERT S. ALLEN

WASHINGTON — The big behind-the-scenes sensation in the battle over the anti-lynching bill is inside word that Vice President Jack Garner favors allowing the measure to come to a vote in the senate.

Inability to get a vote on the senate floor is the only thing that has blocked enactment of this legislation for years. In the last big fight over anti-lynching in 1937, there was an overwhelming majority in the senate for the bill. But its sponsors were unable to force a vote. A determined Southern filibuster lasting nearly six weeks barred action, and in the end the bill was junked.

Garner gave the filibusters potent undercover aid in the 1937 struggle. Throughout his long congressional career he has always been against anti-lynching legislation—and still is. He considers the bill now passed by the house to be unsound and impractical.

But with his sombrero in the presidential ring, he has changed his tune to the extent of permitting a showdown vote. That's an important concession because only a vote is needed to put the measure on the statute books.

However, there is no inside indication that Garner's stand will produce results. None of the other southern leaders has been won over. They are just as adamant against a vote as in the past.

Garner's fellow Texan, Senator Tom Connally floor general of the 1937 battle, also is a candidate this year—but not for the presidency. Tom is up for re-election and has his eye glued on Texas—not the nation. He is out to resist a showdown vote on anti-lynching just as vehemently as he did three years ago. Connally's vigorous Southern backing means that the bill hasn't a chance. After a few weeks of filibuster it will again be pigeonholed.

Note—Also doomed is Pat Harrison's resolution, passed by the senate, for a joint committee to study government income and outgo in order to keep within the budget. House leaders view the proposal as a senate attempt to rule the budget roost, will pigeonhole it in committee.

"Hot" Coat.

THINGS were going pleasantly at former Attorney General Homer Cummings' cocktail party until James V. Bennett suddenly announced that his overcoat was missing.

Guests blinked in horror. The thought that someone would have the temerity to pinch the coat of so awesome an individual as the chief of the U. S. bureau of prisons was hair-raising. A frantic search was begun for the vanished coat and the reckless culprit. Both were soon found.

A young newsman, who had partaken too freely of Cummings' potent hospitality, had mistaken Bennett's coat for his own. He was nonchalantly wearing it as he made his adieus. Apprised of the situation, the reporter remarked, "I thought this one felt sort of warmer than mine."

"Warm!" quipped Gordon Dean, ace lawyer of the Anti-Trust division. "Boy, for a few minutes you had on the 'hottest' overcoat in the country."

Capital Chaff.

THE WAR has created a new concept of transoceanic flying, once considered the height of daring adventure. Today it's the acme of safety, compared to crossing by ship in waters infested with submarines and mines. The transatlantic airlines are getting more passengers and mail business than they can handle. . . Only intimates know it, but former Treasury Under Secretary John Hanes is one of the largest contributors to the Hampton Institute for the Colored . . . 26-year-old Fred Polangin, chief of the commerce department's crack press bureau, is the youngest press chief in the government . . . Assistant Attorney General Thurman Arnold's trust-busting drive in the building industry already has begun to bear fruit. In Pittsburgh, one of the 15 cities he tackled, building costs have dropped sharply . . . Vigorous Assistant War Secretary Louis Johnson hung up an amazing travel record last year. He traveled 100,000 miles by air and 30,000 miles by train on official duty—an average of 370 miles for each day of the year.

Republican Priming.

MIDWESTERN GOP leaders are quietly doing a lot of powwowing among themselves on a plan to organize a Midwest bloc, which would wield a decisive hand in selecting the GOP candidate at the coming national convention.

The grain belt is in a strong strategic position to do that. First, with the exception of Ohio, the Midwestern states have no serious favorite son candidates to complicate things. Second, the Midwest is a crucial, if not THE crucial, battleground of the campaign. So the state and local leaders have it in their power to command a big influence at the convention — if they unite, and that is exactly what they plan to do.

The movement is one of the most significant political developments in months.

Whether anything comes of it remains to be seen. But the boys are doing a lot of quiet visiting back and forth. They are also using various state political affairs, like the Kansas day banquet in Topeka, the Nebraska Founder's day and the Iowa Farm institute meeting—all to exchange views on plans and tactics.

The effect, if any, of these conferences will evince itself within the next 60 days, when the precinct organizations begin holding their meetings on the selection of delegates. What happens at these local conventions will decide the role the Midwest actually will play at the coming Republican convention.

Beautiful Women.

MOST interesting table at the Jackson day dinner was No. 4, immediately under President Roosevelt's nose, and occupied by three of the wealthiest women in America. They were:

Doris Duke Cromwell, wife of the new minister to Canada and heiress of the vast Duke tobacco millions. She is a contributor to the Roosevelt campaign fund.

Ethel duPont Roosevelt, daughter-in-law of the president. Her family owns the biggest munitions and chemical industry in the world, and controls the biggest automobile industry — General Motors.

Mrs. Jock Whitney, whose family owns part of Pan-American Airways and is one of the oldest of the "First Sixty Families of America."

None over 30 years old, together they have a finger in a sizeable amount of American wealth. Yet they are great favorites with Roosevelt.

And while Speaker Bankhead opined on the many liberal, if not radical reforms of the New Deal, these three looked very bored, but very, very beautiful.

TELL BILL GOODBYE + + + + + +

By MARIE BLIZARD

(Copyright, 1939.)

CHAPTER FORTY-EIGHT

Fabienne heard the telephone ring and came out of a deep peaceful sleep to hear Prunella's muffled voice in the other room

She called: "Prunella! I'm awake and I'm starving!"

Prunella, with a broad smile on her face, opened the bedroom door. "Mah goodness, you still hungry, chile? After all that food you et las' night? I'll have you brekfuss in a minute."

"Run the tub first, Prunella."

"You ain't gonna git up, Miz Fabienne? Miz Ellen sez you is to stay abed this mawnin' She had to go to the settlemen' house fo' a little while, but she's comin' home any minute."

"I can't stay in bed I've got things to do Get the porter and have him bring my trunk up here."

"You goin' away?" Prunella asked, her smile disappearing into the cloud of her face

Fabienne nodded "Go along Prunella. Bath first, trunk and then breakfast."

"All mawnin' the telephone's bin ringin' and people askin' for you, Miz Fabienne."

"I don't want to talk to anyone, Prunella."

"Doctor Mallory, he say you is to call him when you wakes up"

Fabienne's heart turned over with a bitter-sweet pain

"He sez you kin git him at his office up to ha'pas' ten He's operatin' at St. Joseph's hospital at 'leben o'clock You best hurry, honey. It's nigh onto ten o'clock now."

"Prunella! Will you please do as I ask?"

Fabienne bathed hastily, gulped her breakfast and began packing the trunk the porter brought into the living room, trying not to think, not to remember Bill's voice saying, "You see, it's this way, Fab—I'm in love with you."

She should have known it long ago, prevented it's ever happening."

It was not too late now, she thought, putting sweaters in a drawer in her trunk. She'd go away and Bill would soon forget her and turn back to Ellen.

Her throat was beginning to ache with the pressure of the pain in her heart It would be better for her to have that pain than for Ellen, who was the best friend she ever had, the finest person she had ever known

She heard a bell ringing again "Prunella, if that's the doctor, tell him I'm still asleep I don't want to talk to him"

"That ain't no telephone. That's the doorbell"

Fabienne looked about her wildly, seeking escape. If that was Bill—

She couldn't see him again'

It was Ellen Ellen, dumb with surprise when she saw Fabienne kneeling before the trunk with her arms filled with clothes

"I'm all well this morning, darling," Fabienne said brightly. "Will you ever forgive me for what I've done to you?"

"I thought we'd got that all settled last night What are you doing, Fab? Where are you going?"

"Paris"

"Paris?" Ellen repeated, sitting down suddenly.

"Um hum" She put shoes in a drawer with her sweaters. "It ought to be easy to get passage for tomorrow. The boats aren't crowded at this time of year."

"But Fab—"

"Will you hand me that silk negligee, darling? I can roll some bottles up in it"

"Fab, what are you going to Paris for?"

Fabienne sat back on her heels "A change, Ellen. Don't you think I need one? I've done enough harm around here."

"You haven't done any harm at all! Chris explained everything. You couldn't have done anything else"

"Look what Bill had to do."

"That's all right with Bill, and what anybody else thinks of it makes no difference. He's going away soon, anyway. And even if he were not, he's big enough to get away with it"

"You think a lot of Bill, don't you Ellen?"

"Of course."

Fabienne smiled at her. "He thinks lot of you, too, Ellen. Don't ever forget that"

Ellen gave her a perplexed glance. She said, "Will you be gone long?"

"Some time"

"But you'll be coming back to to me and to the settlement house?"

Fabienne shook her head and smiled at her brightly, with a hard smile "No, Ellen, no more charity work for me I'm fed up with being a humanitarian. There's nothing in it. Look where it landed me"

After a long minutes, "Ellen said, "I don't believe you, Fab. I know you too well."

"This is the real me you're seeing now. The other was a girl playing a game. Well, the game's finished, Ellen. You and I are of a different caliber. I'm a butterfly."

"That's not true!"

"Oh, yes it is," Fabienne said, tossing her head. "You'll soon find out."

"What do you mean? This isn't like you, darling."

"But it is! The old Fabienne! I'm going to Paris, see mother and lots of my old friends, have a whirl and buy a trousseau and come back—"

"A trousseau?" Ellen's eyes lighted up with pleasure and she got up and went to sit beside Fabienne on the floor.

Fabienne nodded and finished, "And come back and marry Nicky."

The light went out of Ellen's eyes. She was absolutely still as if she were cast in marble.

"Nicky hasn't proposed to me for a long time, but he's always wanted to marry me," Fabienne said gaily, and laughed a little uncertainly.

Ellen got up very slowly. In a toneless voice, she said, "I see."

"I haven't told him yet. I'm going to ring him in a little while and tell him. He'll still make a respectable woman of me. Don't you think so?"

Ellen did not turn from the window where she was looking out, seeing nothing. "Of course he will, Fab. Nicky'd never, never let you down." Her voice caught in her throat.

Fabienne was hanging a dress on her trunk rack, while Ellen was speaking. She arranged its folds and then, quite suddenly, her eyes turned to Ellen's back as shocked realization spread over her face. She got up hurriedly and went to the window, turning Ellen to face her. "Ellen, you and Nicky are in love with each other?" Ellen dropped her eyes. "You are! Why was I so blind! It was because of YOU that Nicky went to work! You old beau-snatcher? Where are my coat and hat?"

Ellen ran after her, "Please, Fabienne. Let me explain."

"Explain!" Fabienne cried joyously. "I haven't got any time for explanations. I've got a date with a dream! Would you mind unpacking that trunk? No' I'll be taking it to Colorado!" She kissed Ellen hurriedly, gave her a great hug and was gone.

She was breathless when she got to St. Joseph's hospital and saw that it was six minutes to eleven.

A nurse at the desk asked her if she wished to see someone.

Fabienne nodded. "Yes. But I can wait. I've been waiting a long time. I can wait a little longer. Do you know when Dr Mallory will be down?"

"About an hour."

"Thanks." An hour wasn't long to stand at the gates of heaven.

The End.

BACKACHE, LEG PAINS MAY BE DANGER SIGN

Of Tired Kidneys

If backache and leg pains are making you miserable, don't just complain and do nothing about them. Nature may be warning you that your kidneys need attention

The kidneys are Nature's chief way of taking excess acids and poisonous waste out of the blood. They help most people pass about 3 pints a day

If the 15 miles of kidney tubes and filters don't work well, poisonous waste matter stays in the blood. These poisons may start nagging backaches, rheumatic pains, leg pains, loss of pep and energy, getting up nights, swelling, puffiness under the eyes, headaches and dizziness. Frequent or scanty passages with smarting and burning sometimes shows there is something wrong with your kidneys or bladder.

Don't wait! Ask your druggist for Doan's Pills, used successfully by millions for over 40 years They give happy relief and will help the 15 miles of kidney tubes flush out poisonous waste from the blood Get Doan's Pills.

ASHLAND WOMAN HAS PROGRAM FOR GROUP

Mrs. Andrews Tells Victorian Members, Friends of "Our Literary Heritage"; Tea Served Following Talk.

AT THE GUEST MEETING of the Victorian club held yesterday at the Women's Club Mrs. H. E. Andrews, professor in the department of English at Ashland college, spoke on "Our Literary Heritage." She was presented by Mrs. Robert S. Gibson and Mrs. R. E. Hutchison.

Mrs. Andrews took the translation of the King James Version of the Bible and pointed out the beautiful drama, poetry and prose found in it. She indicated that the Bible is a rich heritage from a purely literary standpoint, and to illustrate her subject she read some of the psalms and proverbs.

Hostesses yesterday were Mrs. Richard Fishback and Mrs. D. C. Lavender. Tea was served from the long table in the dining room which was centered with pink and yellow flowers. Mrs. Mark Wolcott and Mrs. D. W. Peppard presided.

The next meeting will be held Jan. 29 at the home of Mrs. Dwight Weir, 143 Parkwood boulevard. Mrs. Lester Redding will present the paper on the "Consumer's Movement."

Missions Worker Addresses Group For Association

Miss Ruth Seabury addressed an interdenominational audience last night at the First Congregational church under the auspices of the Women's association of the church. Miss Seabury, who is educational secretary of the American Board of Commissions for Foreign Missions at Boston, gave a series of stories in which she brought out the fact that personality is the one thing which can be shared by all peoples.

She illustrated with stories of her own contacts and experiences with various persons whom she has met throughout the world. Miss Seabury touched briefly on the Madras, India conference held last year which she attended as one of the 45 delegates from the United States.

In her talk she emphasized the conference theme "How Can We Build a Genuinely Worldwide Christian Community?" Miss Seabury suggested breaking down the barriers and pushing out horizons from the narrow, individual life of the community to develop a world outlook. The encouraging note of the address was found in Miss Seabury's remark that apparently all people feel that a world outlook is the answer to the problem of building worldwide Christianity.

Missionary Group Arranges Tables For Party

—News-Journal Photos.

When a good home manager checks her stock of pillow cases, she should inspect the pillows as well. Not even a glossy new slip can rejuvenate a pillow that's gone limp and flabby with age. Putting fifteen-year-old pillows in brand new cases is like slip-covering a broken chair.

If you are in doubt about the condition of your pillows, give each one a simple test. Rest it across your arm. If the ends droop badly, the pillow's usefulness is over. If it holds its shape, it probably still is in good condition.

A lifeless pillow is a sleep-destroyer and should be discarded without delay. After all, pillows are filled with perishable materials, the best of which lose their resilience in from five to ten years. It is only reasonable that they should be replaced at regular intervals.

In buying new pillows, keep in mind that the lightest ones are best because they contain a maximum of better feathers. Goose and duck feathers make the best filling not only because they are lighter than chicken or turkey feathers, but also because they are naturally springy and resilient.

The softness or firmness of a pillow is determined by the mixture of feathers used. Down (which is the soft undercoating that grows beneath feathers of waterfowl) makes the softest, lightest and most luxurious pillows. Many people, however, find all-down pillows too soft. Down mixed in varying amounts with waterfowl feathers will give light pillows that have enough firmness to suit the average taste.

LECTURES ON CHINA BEFORE STUDY CLUB

Members, Guests Hear Personal Anecdotes By Mrs. Myron E. Terry; Mrs. Cook, Mrs. Roller In Charge.

THE China of Pearl Buck and Lin Yutang was brought vividly before members of the Round Table club and their guests yesterday morning when Mrs. Myron E. Terry, Shanghai, China, spoke. Mrs. Terry, who has just returned from seven years in the Far East to her American home in Wooster, gave a detailed deliniation of life in the most cosmopolitan of international cities—Shanghai.

Attired in native costume, Mrs. Terry, who is the wife of the business manager of a publishing company that prints and distributes religious literature translated into Chinese, described her work in religious education, and told of her experiences with the natives.

In her introduction she portrayed the crowded living conditions in the vast city that welcomes all to its gates, and gave a picture of the philosophy of the people who are satisfied with what they have, enjoy life intensly, and can stand anything but "to lose face."

Mrs. Terry gave her audience first hand impressions of bloody Saturday when the International Settlement was bombed and more than 2000 persons were killed before a Chinese theater. In telling of the war situation she emphasized the fact that the Japanese people are not at all aware of the situation in China.

When questioned on the possibilities of the communistic influence of the U. S. S. R. on the attempts to bring Christianity to China, Mrs. Terry told the group that there was little likelihood of China becoming Communistic as they are a family people, and Communism, of course, puts the state first.

She illustrated her talk with personal anecdotes of her experiences, and those of her husband and four children, and also exhibited photographs and wood carvings brought from China.

Rev. and Mrs. Terry worked in the Presbyterian settlement while in China, and assisted in conducting the two large schools, the church and the settlement house.

The meeting was conducted by Mrs. B. L. Chase, president, and Mrs. David N. Roller introduced the speaker. Mrs. John Cook was hostess for the meeting, after which luncheon was served at two large tables in the dining room.

Members will meet Jan. 22 at 1:30 p. m. with Mrs. Mary Thornberry at the Club house for a dessert-luncheon.

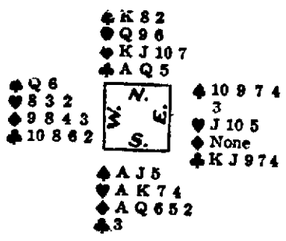
"The Authority on Authorities"

FORCING A READING

USUALLY the running of all your set-up tricks is for the purpose of making the defenders discard down to the point at which they unguard some winners, as in the squeeze plays, or get themselves timed so that you can throw them into the lead and make them present you a trick via an end-play. On other occasions, you do it with the idea of getting a reading of their cards, so that you may decide whether to try a finesse or play for the drop of some particular honor.



(Dealer: North. North-South vulnerable.)

The brilliant and thorough Fred E. Slater got a clear top on this deal in the Metropolitan open pair championship by bidding and making 7-No Trumps. His partner, William B. Hill, jr., started in the North with 1-Diamond. Mr. Slater bid 2-Hearts, Mr. Hill 3-Clubs and East doubled. Mr. Slater then 4-Club as an artificial call to scare the opponents from that lead, then Mr. Hill 4-Hearts and Mr. Slater 7-No Trumps.

Because of his partner's double, West led the club 10. Mr. Slater put up the A in dummy, then ran five diamonds, followed by four hearts, making ten tricks in all. On the spade K then both defenders followed, and East followed also on the lead of the spade 8. This left East only one card, sure to be the club K because of his double, that being kept to guard the dummy queen. With still another club yet unplayed, West was bound to have it, so his other card was now the singleton spade Q. Mr. Slater consequently played the Spade A, dropped the Q and got the last trick with the spade J.

Those who didn't run their set-up tricks first, but tried the finesse of the spade J instead, of course failed to make the grand slam.

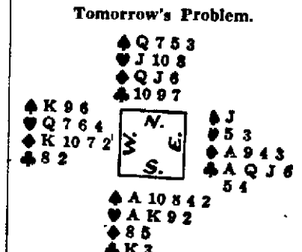
Tomorrow's Problem.



Dealer: South. East-West vulnerable.)

What is the soundest bidding of this deal?

Dishwashing is not complete until every inch of the sink and drainboard have been gone over with hot water, and the dish cloths and dish mops thoroughly washed and hung up to dry.

Basement workshops or playrooms are best, as a rule, kept four or five degrees cooler than upstairs rooms. This usually means that no special heating arrangements need to be made, even though the furnace is partitioned off from the room. Modern forced-air heating systems make it possible to locate the furnace in a corner of the cellar space, and to use a smaller furnace, as well as permitting the use of smaller air ducts, so that the workshop or playroom can have not only more floor space, but better head room.

Marriage Meddlers

By ADELE GARRISON

Continuation of "Married Comrades".

"He is in surprisingly good shape, considering what he has been through," she said. "And he is supremely satisfied with the way things are shaping up. He has all the threads in his hands at last, and he not only can afford to play a waiting game, but prefers to do it. He knows exactly where Leslie is, and while he has no spy—as yet—on the inside of that modern pirate lair, he has plenty of scouts on the outside who are keeping him posted concerning every movement of Leslie's gang. As I told you before, he has every avenue blocked, by air, by sea, by land, and he can afford to play a waiting game."

"You mean he expects Leslie to try getting Mary alive, and himself dead or alive, in an attack on the farm house?" I queried breathlessly.

"I mean that's what your father hopes he will do," she replied. "He wants him to get the impression that while your father's still on guard, he believes Leslie has given up the enterprise until some more propitious time. But how long it will take Leslie to get that impression, assimilate it and act upon it is on the assorted laps of the well-known gods."

"That means," I said hopefully, "that Father can have a rest of a day or two at least."

"Probably longer than that," she returned. "And can he ever use it! Which reminds me, you're not so long on sleep yourself. Why don't you lie down while you're waiting?

"I can't lie down, I'm too nervous," I told her. "But I'll be glad to sit down quietly in this armchair and close my eyes for a few minutes."

"See that you do," she adjured me. "Now, in which direction do you want me to steer old Phil first? Yours?"

"Olga's," I told her unhesitatingly. "I want him to see her before Olina sees him."

"You don't need to worry on that score," she said. "Phil knows his social onions far too well to talk to Olina before he calls on her mother. If he asks for you first, I'll tell him you're lying down, and that I would like to wait ten or 15 minutes before I call you. That will give him a chance to say that he would like to see Olga. Then I'll usher him up to her suite, and afterward come back to you and give you the office. How about it? Does that plan suit you?"

"Perfectly," I told her, and she turned to the door.

"Better get into that armchair pronto," she advised, "and I'll go down and wait for dear old Phil."

"I'm in it already," I told her, and before she was out of the room, I was cozily ensconced in the arm-chair, with my shoes off, my feet on a hassock and my head resting against a comfortable pillow.

I did not intend to go to sleep, indeed I did not think I was at all inclined to slumber, but I must have drowsed off almost immediately, for the next thing I knew Lillian was standing over me, her fingers pressing my wrist.

"Private Underwood reporting, General Graham," she intoned. "Our distinguished guest has arrived, and I have just ushered him into the royal presence. He has indicated his reluctance to have you awakened, but nevertheless would like to see you. So, with your permission, I will take up a strategic position on the hall window seat where I can see all doors, and when Senor Veritzen emerges, I will notify you at once."

"Very good," I said, humoring her nonsense. "You have my permission to retire."

She saluted smartly, and went out of the door. Less than five minutes later there came a sharp rapping on the door, and when I called "Come in," Princess Olina burst into the room in a "royal rage."

"My mother's going to marry that man, and you're the cause of it all," she accused.

When we meet untidy people, we are likely to feel a sense of aversion that often blinds us to the qualities we might otherwise admire. We may grow to like them notwithstanding but there is always a hope that their standards will improve.

HOROSCOPE

For Wednesday, January 17.

A DIFFICULT though not dull day is foreseen from the mixed astrological portents. There may be an unexpected change, journey or other upheaval, probably of a rather unsatisfactory or depressing nature, possibly incited by a below-par status of the health or illness at home. All may combine to create disagreements or want of approbation from employers, superiors or those in authority. However, there will be social or affectional compensations.

Those whose birthdays it is may have a year of unforeseen change, with removal or travel, possibly connected with changed employment or conflict with employers or others in authority. Illness or depression may be at the root of such adverse conditions which will be benefited by the change of scene. There also will be domestic, social or emotional comforts, with sympathy and understanding.

A child born on this day may be talented, creative and original, either in art, science or invention, although its delicate health may prove a detrimental factor to high success unless it be given proper care in its early years.

Consider Menus For Lent

By ALICE LYNN BARRY

Lent will soon be here, and it behooves us to consider meals that are meatless yet satisfying, toothsome and nutritious. The good cook makes splendid dishes out of macaroni, does marvels with vegetables, and has new ideas when it comes to fish dishes. One of the favorite foods is the mushroom. There are marvelous canned varieties to augment the fresh mushrooms that are nearly always in the market.

The mushoom is popular in all countries, so there are many international mushroom ideas. In the Balkans, cooks peel the mushroom heads, sprinkle with salt, pepper and a little flour, and put in a casserole with two ounces butter to each pound. These are cooked slowly until tender. Then they pour over some sour cream and continue cooking slowly for 15 minutes more.

If you want to try the Belgium method, melt three ounces butter in a pan with the juice of half a lemon. When simmering, put in a pound of small, peeled mushrooms. Stir for three or four minutes but do not let them turn black. Boil quickly for five minutes (the mushrooms are now soaked in butter and will not burn), then take out the mushrooms with a strainer. Sprinkle with salt, pepper and flour, return to sauce pan, cook for ten minutes more, and then stir in an egg yolk. Pile mixture on hot buttered toast.

The Turkish Manner.

A Turkish recipe: Put in a sauce pan one-half pint each of cooked rice and chopped, cold, cooked mushrooms, two chopped hard-boiled eggs, a small chopped onion, a pinch of spice and a gill of tomato puree. Heat over a strong flame. When cool, fill little pastry shells with the mixture. Bake, and serve hot.

Mushroom Fritters, tasty for luncheon or supper, are easily prepared. Choose medium-sized mushrooms and peel them. Make a rather thick batter, sprinkle a little salt over the brown side of each mushroom button, immerse in the batter and fry in plenty of butter.

ATTENDANCE IN DECEMBER DROPS IN CITY SCHOOLS

Hedges Elementary Has to Share Lead for Month With West Fifth.

Attendance in Mansfield public schools dropped off slightly in December, averaging 93.8 per cent as compared with 94.5 per cent in November, principals' reports to Supt. W. L. Miller showed today.

The number of pupils who were neither absent nor tardy last month dropped off to 2,907 from 3,637 in the preceding month. There were 742 cases of tardiness as compared with 591 in November.

Hedges, West Fifth Lead.

Hedges elementary school continued as the leader in attendance, reporting 95.3 per cent, but it had to share honors with the West Fifth street school with the same percentage. Hedges Junior high school was second with 95.1 per cent and Prospect school was third with 95 per cent.

Truancy cases totaled 29 as against 25 in November. Eight schools had no truancy, while the John Simpson and Hedges junior high schools accounted for 21 of the 29 cases.

Senior high school headed the list in cases of tardiness, reporting 181 for the month. John Simpson junior high had 123 cases and Bowman school, 111.

Schools Urged To Make Study Fit Life Needs

PITTSBURGH—(U.P.)—How to select a balanced diet, pick a mate, choose a becoming necktie, and correct a golf slice should be subjects included on the high school curriculum.

That is the opinion of G. C. Galphin, head of the department of psychology and education at Drexel Institute, Philadelphia, who addressed a regional conference of high school principals here.

Galphin believes that subjects such as these, streamlined to fit the practical needs of modern youth, should augment the time-honored English and mathematics and history.

"We need to give more attention in secondary schools to forms of recreation which can be followed throughout life," Galphin said. "I am in favor of teaching golf in high schools."

Galphin also stressed the need for more "intelligent hiking," remarking that "a lot of people don't see a thing when they walk through the woods."

To prevent graduates from "getting girth" in middle age, he suggests diet courses.

His program, Galphin believes, would help students develop "social competence" and better "home living."

SPLITS LAST OF '39 TAX FUNDS

Auditor Distributes $129,000 in Personal Receipts to County Sub-divisions.

Richland county and its sub-divisions received their final 1939 county tax money—and the last for several weeks—Tuesday when $129,573 in personal tax receipts was distributed by Deputy Auditor Arthur S. Beck.

Two advance settlements, including $30,000 to Mansfield schools and $15,000 to the city of Mansfield, reduced the total settlement from $174,573.

The cities, townships and villages will receive an additional $8,712 in state sales tax money, representing the December collections, Beck said.

There will be no more county tax funds available until late in March or the first of April at the close of the real estate tax collection for the first half of 1940, Beck said.

City and county schools will receive $73,472, the largest share of the personal tax money, in this week's allocation. Mansfield schools will get $50,820, including the $30,000 advanced recently. The Shelby schools' share will be $11,701.

The city of Mansfield, which received a $15,000 advance, will get $27,998 more this week. The county's allocation will total $28,192, while Shelby's coffers will be enriched by $10,346, and the 18 townships will receive $3,863.

VICTORS DONATE BASKETS

MASON CITY, Wash.—(U.P.)—The Mason City high school basketball team played Santa Claus to the Hartline squad here and amassed such a heavy advantage that its players shot a few baskets for Hartline so that the score would not be too lop-sided.

PROFITABLE CUTTING-UP

Finns' Sons Sell Silhouettes Throughout U. S. Making Neat Income.

ST. LOUIS—Could you make a living with a pair of scissors?

Adolph Budd-Jack, 32, one of five brothers who are engaged in cutting silhouettes, says he averages $150 a week with a tiny pair of scissors and black paper.

The brothers, sons of immigrants from Finland, divide up the United States and each works a section.

Adolph said he learned the art from his mother who took it up after the death of their father, a sculptor.
